21 Bodies Now Recovered

Case Mounts Against Murder Suspect

BURIAL SITE—Air view shows the long excavation made at the J.L. Sullivan ranch, near Yuba City, Calif., where some of the 20 bodies were found, in what has been described as the worst mass slaying in the U.S. in the 20th Century. Digging in the orchards to try and locate additional gravesites was cut short by pelting rains. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—The evidence against Juan V. Corona in the slaying of 21 farm workers includes receipts made out to him buried in a grave, several weapons with "possible blood stains" found at his home, and a barroom fight in which he allegedly attacked a man with a meat cleaver.

The case against the 37-year-old former mental patient was outlined in court documents released Friday night after deputies dug up another body from a crude graveyard on the banks of the Feather River.

Sheriff Roy Whiteaker said the search for more victims of "a homicidal maniac" would continue in peach orchards and riverside brush "as long as we keep making recoveries."

"This is an area where there may be many more graves," he said Friday.

The possibility that anger over a rejected application for welfare may have triggered the mass slayings was reportedly under investigation by Whiteaker and District Attorney G. Dave Teja, who seized county welfare department files on Corona.

Corona, a farm labor contractor, applied for a $282 monthly grant under the Aid to Families With Dependent Children Program in March after five months in which farm crews were not working. He indicated he would need the aid only until May 15, but was turned down because he has possessions in excess of $600.

"When he was told he had been denied he became very hostile," a welfare investigator said. "He said he felt he had been singled out and was being picked on." The investigator said Corona felt the rejection was because he was Mexican.

"One post hole digger with possible blood stains. Also, mud and hair on digging portion, found in garage," read one entry.

"One two-foot crowbar, rusty with possible blood stains, found in cabinet in the garage," read another. "One 2½ foot wooden club with possible blood stains, found at southeast corner of the backyard."

An 18-inch bolo machete, two pairs of men's shorts, "one with possible blood stains," and six 9 mm luger shells were found under the floor of the driver's side of Corona's new van.

In another document, the sheriff cited a police report from neighboring Marysville on a 1970 incident in a bar operated by Corona's brother, Natividad. "This report shows that Juan Corona was involved in the assault upon one Jose Romero Raya with meat cleavers or similar objects on or about Feb. 25, 1970," the petition said, but was released as "recovered."

The same informant said one of the suspect's brothers was a homosexual. "If someone even brought up the subject, directed at his brother or not, Juan Corona would go into his fits of temper," the affidavit quoted the informant.

One affidavit said "some of the bodies bear defensive wounds," apparently meaning the victims had tried to defend themselves against the killer. Whiteaker said at least two separate weapons, and perhaps more, were used.

The records also showed that Roy Delong, who was picked up early Friday in Marysville as a "material witness," and then released a short time later, was the witness who told police Sigrid Biereman, 63, was last seen getting into Corona's van. Biereman was one of the first victims identified.

Nobody Would Miss Victims in Orchards

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — The orchards beside the gentle winding Feather River annually yield a rich harvest of fruit, the basis of life in Sutter County. This year they also yielded the bodies of at least 21 forgotten men.

Sheriff's deputies with shovels and later aided by a mechanical digging machine moved down the rows of peach trees, opening the bodies. Every few hours the men would stop, wrenched back to reality by shout, "I've found another one."

Juan Vallejo Corona, 37, a labor contractor who for nine seasons has provided crews of Mexican-Americans to work the orchards, is in the old county jail, charged with murder.

The motive for the murder is unknown.

Sheriff Roy Whiteaker says all the victims apparently were transients, temporary residents of skid row in Marysville, across the Feather River from Yuba City's trim streets.

"Nobody would miss these people," explains Joe Miguel, manager of the state farm labor office in Yuba City. "A lot of them are on the lam, probably. They could even have used aliases."

The men inhabit $1-a-night hotels near the levee in Marysville, sleep in empty boxcars on the Western Pacific tracks or, in warm weather, camp under the E Street Bridge.

Known only by nicknames, or

as "Pete" or "Joe," they come and go almost unnoticed. When they drop out of sight, there is no one to file a missing person report.

Miguel says some of the 750 or so skid rowers have landed there because of drinking problems. Others have had family problems.

It takes money to eat, or buy a bottle of cheap wine. With no saleable skills, the men join crews who prune and thin the peach and plum orchards that fan out from town, perhaps signing on with Juan Corona or another 4,000 are recruited to help with the harvest in late August and September. They labor from sunup until early afternoon, when the heat may soar to 100 degrees or more.

"Most of them set a financial goal," says Miguel. "A good picker can earn $25 to $30 a day. Starting early, they may make that goal by noon, then they take off."

Families of migrant laborers pay $1 a day to live in wooden housing units erected four years ago and run by the state. The plumbing is modern, and inside. Some may live in privately owned cabins, not so modern.

Some return to skid row for a cool beer. The owner of the Marysville bar says his place serves as an informal letter drop for transients. "I keep letters maybe three, four, eight months. If nobody comes along for them, I burn 'em," he says. "It's dog eat dog on skid row," observed Marysville policeman Andre Etchegoin. "The pickings are thin."

Sheriff Whiteaker could readily identify only two of the bodies, which he said were hacked savagely in the chest and head with a machete or similar instrument. Some were in the ground perhaps two months.

One victim was Sigrid Emil Beierman, 63, a skid row figure known as "Pete" who worked in Marysville as a "swamper."

About 2,000 persons find year-round work in the orchards and money.

Police Probe Drowning Of 19-Year-Old City Girl

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON — Police authorities are awaiting a coroner's ruling in the death of a 19-year-old Kingston girl who was pulled from the waters of the Rondout Creek near Dwyer's Boat Basin early today.

The dead girl was identified as Laverne Marshall of 92 Emerick Street.

Police received a call at 1:30 a.m. today "from an excited male" who reported that a young girl "has just jumped, or fell into the Rondout Creek."

The unidentified man also reportedly phoned the Kingston Fire Department.

Police and firemen responded to the call and pulled the girl from the creek a short time later. She was pronounced dead at the scene by Ulster County Coroner Arthur Chipp, according to a police detective, and her body was then transported to the city morgue.

The investigation is being continued by the Kingston Police Department and Coroner Chipp. No ruling in the girl's death has yet been made.

Further details have not been released by police authorities.

Ulster county highways, meanwhile, were free of fatal mishaps during the first hours of the long holiday weekend.

There were no serious auto accidents reported in Ulster County Friday night or Saturday morning.

In Dutchess County, however, four Bard College students were injured when the car in which they were riding failed to negotiate a curve on Annandale Road and slammed into a tree.

John Hershey, 23, of 584 Liberty Avenue, Williston Park was the driver of the early model sedan. Hershey, who sustained a fractured right ankle in the mishap, was ticketed by Rhinebeck troopers for being an unlicensed operator.

Three other passengers in the car were also injured. William Moore, 23, of 6514 5th Street,

The accident occurred at 5 a.m. today.

All four students were given emergency treatment at North-ern Dutchess Hospital in Rhinebeck.

Local police authorities, meanwhile, are hoping for yet another Memorial Day weekend unscarred by highway tragedy.

Ex-Policeman Overpowered Trying to Flee Hijacked Jet

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — An ex-New York City policeman who claimed he had wrapped himself in explosives was overpowered today as he attempted to flee a hijacked jetliner with $500,000 and three hostages.

The hijacker — identified as James Bennett, 39, of Commack, N.Y. — was hurled to the ground by EAL senior pilot John O'Neill as he walked toward two small bags illuminated by the glare of a waiting automobile's headlights.

O'Neill, 52, had stood quietly to one side of the runway. He said he "sized the hijacker up" and, after deciding he "really wasn't armed," waited until he was close enough and then "just grabbed him in a good old headlock and wrestled him to the ground."

About 30 U.S. Customs agents, airport personnel and Nassau police then subdued Bennett and stripped him as they searched for the explosives. They found none.

He was then whisked off to a Nassau jail as U.S. State Department officials huddled with local officials to decide official jurisdiction in the case.

The hijacking began hours before as Capt. Eugene Sullivan and his other five crewmembers aboard the EAL 727 prepared to land their 132 passengers at New York's La Guardia Airport after a flight from Miami.

Bennett, identified by Deputy Police Chief Joseph Collins of New York as a 10-year veteran of New York motorcycle force, ordered a stewardess to tell Sullivan to land and stand by for further instructions or he would blow the plane up with explosives he claimed to have strapped around his waist.

During the 90-minute New York stop, Bennett's wife, Loraine, made an unsuccessful plea to dissuade her husband from his hijacking scheme. He did allow the passengers and three stewardesses to leave the plane.

Sullivan said Bennett told him he didn't want to hurt any passengers.

"He said he wanted to talk to Chief Inspector Kowski of the New York Police Department and also to Martha Mitchell, wife of the attorney general, whom he said he admired," Sullivan said.

Sullivan kept up a running dialogue with Nassau Civil Aviation Director Donald Ingraham as EAL and security personnel scurried to coordinate the hijacker's demands.

"The man wants his green travel bag, luggage check 243864, unloaded," Sullivan said from the cockpit. "He wants a car parked within sight of the goddamn ground are nervous lights shining on the aircraft too and that's my wife we're and he's demanding that an English-speaker driver and an EAL station manager Bill woman be in the car. He also Bearman, whose miniskirted wants $500,000 in cash to be wife had volunteered to be the placed in another bag and the woman hostage and sat waiting with an unidentified driver in the car parked under the jetliner's wingtip."

Shortly after the missing green luggage was found and Sullivan advised ground personnel Bennett would leave the aircraft "when he sees both bags out there, the car ready and everything set."

Eastern said the $500,000 had been flown from Miami in a small plane.

As the stocky, goateed ex-Marine descended the plane with Condon and stepped toward the car, 240-pound O'Neill jumped him and wrestled him to the ground.

President Nixon Tells Cadets...

End of U.S. Role in Viet Clearly in Sight

WEST POINT, N. Y. (UPI)—

President Nixon told the corps of cadets at the U.S. Military Academy today that the end of the American role in the Vietnam War was "clearly in sight" and "we are ending our involvement with honor."

But the President, in his first visit to West Point, as commander in chief, also advised the cadets that American military strength would remain "the keystone in the structure of peace" and that they might be called to serve without receiving civilian recognition "in the measure you deserve."

Nixon said that the United States has "good grounds to believe that this hope for a new era of world peace will come true."

In his prepared remarks, he said: "America and the Soviet Union, the two great superpowers, are committed more seriously than ever before to working out an agreement that will limit strategic arms. America and Mainland China, after more than 20 years of hostility and isolation, are beginning to move toward a new and more normal relationship. The nations of Europe are taking important steps toward greater unity. The truce in the Middle East will soon be a year old.

"None of this is cause for euphoria. The harvest time of peace is not yet. What we can say, though, is that the seeds of peace are planted, and that they are germinating in a way that seems to hold great promise. Certainly the chances for a full generation of peace in America and the world are stronger today than at any other period in your lifetime," he said.

The President flew to West Point to review the corps of cadets at a time when military morale is sagging because of

The plaque noted these roles with the quotation "I was sick and you comforted . . . I was in prison and you visited me." The pastor and his wife are leaving the Ulster County area to make their home in Vermont. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Jewish Festival Begins Tonight

KINGSTON
The Festival of Shevuot, also known as the Feast of Weeks, will be observed by Jews all over the world, beginning tonight. Conservative and orthodox Jews observe the holiday for two days, the Reform Jews for one day.

The Bible exhorts the Jewish people to set aside an omer, or measure of grain, beginning with the second day of Passover, and to count seven weeks, or forty-nine days. His setting aside the measure of grain each day. On the 50th day, or after the seven weeks, the Festival of Shevuot begins—therefore the appellation, Feast of Weeks. On the 50th day the first crops are to be brought to the Holy Temple to which the Jewish people would make their pilgrimage, going to Jerusalem with their baskets of fruit and grain.

The main observance of the holiday, since it has lost its active agricultural significance, is to commemorate the Revelation on Mt. Sinai when the Israelites received the Ten Commandments from Moses. This event occurred 50 days after the Israelites made their exodus from Egypt.

Religious services are conducted, and the Ten Commandments are read in the original Hebrew from the Torah, the scroll of the Bible. A poetic introduction to the reading of the Ten Commandments, called Adomosis, is chanted in traditional melody.

Memoriam
In loving memory of our parents, Susanna and Hugo Nickel; brother Hugo Nickel Jr. and sister, Augusta DuBois.

As long as we live we treasure their names,
In memory we see them just the same.
Deep in our hearts they are with us yet,
We loved them too dearly to ever forget.

DAUGHTERS AND SONS SISTERS AND BROTHER
Memoriam
In loving memory of Muriel Guerrera, who passed away four years ago, May 31.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well.
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.

HUSBAND, DAUGHTER and GRANDCHILDREN
Memoriam
In memory of Wayne D. Johnson, who passed away two years ago, May 31, 1969.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.

Sweet to remember him who was here,
Who, gone away, is just as dear.
MOTHER and DAD BROTHERS and SISTERS

Memoriam
In memory of the deceased members of the "50" Club.

GOODBYE
Goodbye dear friends
We've reached the end
Of life-long friendship's road.
God be with you!
Good friends and true
We still must bear life's load.
Since you're with God
As we do plod,
Your presence we shall share.
We'll shed no tears
We'll feel you near
For God is everywhere.

Briefs

Budget Deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department says the federal government ran up a $21.6 billion budget deficit during the first 10 months of the fiscal year that ends June 30.

June is traditionally the best month of the year for federal revenues, and the final deficit for the year may be less than the 10-month figure.

Test A-Blast

PHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission exploded 1,000 pounds of high explosive chemical Friday in a test designed to provide data on ground motion in nuclear detonations.

The non-nuclear blast, touched off underground in a tunnel at the Pahute Mesa area of the Nevada test site, was not heard off the AEC facility and caused no damage.

Old Indian Custom

GULBRAGA, India (UPI) — Strangers to this town in southern India were startled Friday to see a procession of about 80 nude women carrying lamps on their heads file along the banks of a stream during the early morning hours.

Townsmen said it was an annual event in which childless women and those afflicted with diseases disrobe to march to a temple.

the My Lai charges and disciplinary breakdowns.

He recalled that President John F. Kennedy, in a commencement address at West Point in 1962, warned that no other period in U.S. history would be as challenging as the decade of the 1960's.

"Now looking back we can see how right he was," Nixon said.

"Through a long and bitter struggle in Vietnam, American fighting men have served the cause of freedom magnificently. American military leadership, much of it from here at West Point, has been superb. And the American people have stood behind our commitment to the people of South Vietnam in the face of great temptations to turn aside."

"But now at last we have the end of the American role in this war clearly in sight. And we are ending our involvement with honor, in a way that will discourage new aggression and contribute to a lasting peace in the Pacific and the world."

Nixon added that he was grateful that only a small number of the 1971 class, which will be commissioned in a few days, had received orders to proceed to Vietnam and that only a few of the 3,700 cadets that he was reviewing would ever be called to serve there.

Nixon flew to Stewart Field in Newburgh, N.Y., and went by helicopter to the military academy where he was greeted by Maj. Gen. William A. Knowlton, the academy superintendent.

Highland Board Presents Budget

HIGHLAND final tax figures would depend on the amount of state aid available to the district. A large part of the increase is due to the new school building. Approximately $240,000 will be required for principal and interest payment, and about $75,000 for utilities and maintenance.

The district's annual meeting will be June 8, and voting on the budget June 9.

Saugerties Principals, School Board in Accord

SAUGERTIES serving as chief negotiator. Dr. Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dexter O. Arnold and Robert Moser, president of the Saugerties Principals Association, announced that the impasse between the Saugerties Board of Education and the Saugerties Principals Association has ended with a contract ratified by the principals and agreed upon by the board's negotiating team.

It is expected that it will be ratified by the Board of Education at its June 21 meeting. Except for salary increases, the contract follows the 1970-71 document, Dr. Arnold said.

All principals and assistant principals served on the association's negotiating team with High School Principal Daniel Lee as chief negotiator. Board members John Bragg, Robert Herb, and Philip Meade represented the board with Administrative Assistant Harold Bell.

NBA Stars Victorious Without Alcindor

HOUSTON (UPI) — Larry Jones, the outspoken leader of the ABA Player's Association, said if Lew Alcindor did not show up for the all-star game in the Astrodome Friday night, the NBA would be in trouble. Alcindor did not show up and the NBA was in trouble. The 7-3 Milwaukee Bucks center was married Friday in Washington and his new Islamic faith prohibited him from flying to Houston after the church ceremony and playing in the game, according to teammate Oscar Robertson.

But the outside shooting of Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks and two clutch free throws by Robertson in the final seconds carried the NBA to a 125-120 victory Friday night over the ABA in the first on-court rivalry between the two warring leagues.

Frazier hit 11 of 16 from the field and finished with 26 points to win most valuable player honors earning him an automobile he did not even know was being offered.

While his out of shape teammates missed 28 of 46 shots in the first half, Frazier hit seven of eight and the NBA held a 66-64 halftime margin. The NBA was still struggling with a slight lead, 121-120, with 32 seconds remaining when Robertson sank two free throws to make it 123-120.

Frazier hit the final two free throws with 11 seconds remaining.

The NBA apparently had the game won, leading by 108-98 after reeling off 12 straight points midway through the final period. But Rick Barry of New York and Charlie Scott of Virginia led an ABA surge wanted to get a lead and hold it.

Barry, a former NBA star who led the ABA in this game with 20 points, said the new league had more to gain in the game, even if it lost by a slight margin. He said the officials called the game too closely, and statistics showed the NBA shot 70 free throws while the ABA had shot only 45.

Robertson, who received a call from Alcindor four hours before game time advising him he could not play, said he was sure that Lew had planned to come.

after the ceremony. He also said Alcindor had set his wedding date well before the date of the game was scheduled.

Petrocelli, Siebert Turn Oakland's Vida Blue

By United Press International

In the first showdown of the American League's elite pitchers of 1971, the difference between Vida Blue and Sonny Siebert was Rico Petrocelli.

Petrocelli, who entered the game batting only .246, swatted a pair of home runs to spark the Boston Red Sox to a 4-3 victory over the Oakland Athletics, snapping Blue's 10-game winning streak and enabling Siebert to run his record to 9-0.

Petrocelli drove in three runs with his homers—connecting with Reggie Smith aboard in the first and then clouting a solo blast in the sixth.

In other American League games Friday, California outslugged New York 9-6, Kansas City blanked Washington 5-0, Minnesota edged Baltimore 7-6, Detroit topped Milwaukee 6-3 and Cleveland shut out Chicago 4-0.

In National League play, Chicago beat Pittsburgh 4-2, Cincinnati edged Houston 1-0 in 13 innings, St. Louis blanked Atlanta 4-0, San Francisco downed Montreal 3-1 and Los Angeles defeated Philadelphia 6-2. New York at San Diego was rained out.

"I don't know how in hell I hit him," Petrocelli said of Blue. "I really didn't expect to hit him since I'm a curve ball hitter. I've never been in the world's greatest fast ball hitter."

Siebert, who gave up six hits including home runs to Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando and Dave Duncan, had to be removed with two outs in the ninth inning when his arm tightened up.

"I hurt my elbow pitching to Duncan in the seventh," Siebert said. "I threw five sliders in a row but after that all I could throw was all fast balls and one changeup."

Blue, who isn't the first young pitcher to fall victim to Fenway Park's cozy 340-foot leftfield wall, was philosophical about the loss.

"What can you do about it," the 21-year-old southpaw said. "You can't change your pitching style. The wall is there—you just have to pitch your game. I just kept making the bad pitch."

A capacity crowd of 35,714 watched the game which marked the return of Dick Williams, who managed the Red Sox to the American League pennant in 1967. Five thousand additional fans were turned away.

Boston first baseman George Scott, who feuded openly with Williams during the latter's stormy tenure in Boston, had little animosity for the new Oakland skipper.

"Beating Williams is no different than beating anyone else," Scott said. "It's just as good as beating (Earl) Weaver (Baltimore Orioles' manager)."

The Orioles meanwhile slipped to four games further back of the Red Sox in the American League East by falling to Minnesota. Harmon Killebrew belted the 493rd homer of his career and started a five-run Twins' rally in the sixth by leading off with a walk. After Killebrew walked, Tony Oliva singled, Merv Rettenmund booted Leo Cardenas' single, Brant Aylva singled and Steve Braun capped the uprising with a two-run double.

Jim Spencer batting only .176 going into the game, drove in four runs with a two-run homer in the second and a two-run single in the third inning to carry the California Angels past the New York Yankees. Prodigal son Alex Johnson, back in the Angels lineup after being benched for lackadaisical play, contributed another pair of rbis in the third on a double which snapped a 2-2 tie. Horton put runners on first and second and both scored on a wild pitch by Brewer starter kee. Dick McLuiffie tripled Bill Parsons and a wild throw home Ed Brinkman and then scored on Jim Northrup's single. Another base hit by Willie Cain recorded his second hits for Cleveland, 4-0.

Clete Boyer Now Unemployed

ATLANTA (AP) — Clete Boyer has joined the list of baseball's unemployed, rejecting a late offer to retain his $45,000-a-year third baseman's job with the Atlanta Braves.

Boyer, generally regarded as one of the game's slickest fielders during his 15-year major league career, was placed on waivers Friday in the aftermath of his public criticism of Braves Vice President Paul Richards and Manager Luman Harris.

Richards said Boyer "will be given his unconditional release as soon as waivers are obtained" from the other nine National League teams. Boyer could be claimed for the $20,000 waiver price anytime between now and next Wednesday.

Richards said Bill Bartholomay, president and board chairman of the Braves, "requested me to ask Clete to rejoin the club. I asked him to, but he refused."

"I just feel right now that I don't have a job," said a subdued Boyer, who two hours earlier was in a jovial mood as he chatted with newsmen shortly before entering Richards' office.

"I guess sometimes I talk too much," he said. "I think I have said enough." Boyer met only briefly with reporters following his powwow with Richards and was interrupted several times by Atlanta attorney Joe Williamson, who said, "Come on Clete, let's go."

"I just hope I can hook on to another club," Boyer said. "I'm really sorry to leave this town. I love it."

Boyer's separation from the Braves came in a hurry—only four days after the New York Post published an article quoting the player as saying there shouldn't be any place in baseball for a man like Richards.

Richards quickly retorted by calling Boyer "a lousy player."

This prompted further criticism from Boyer plus a request for the Braves to release him. Boyer told Richards he would forfeit the 60 days severance pay due him and said it suspended Boyer indefinitely without pay if he failed to meet League before joining the Braves in 1967. He had six years left on his contract.

Boyer was hitting .242 for the home runs and 19 runs batted in during his last season with the Braves, one point better than in this year.

McDowell, who walked nine, walked to Graig Nettles, a double was touched for only an infield by Vida Pinson and a single by hit by Rick Reichardt in the Roy Foster. Pinson scored first inning and a line single by again in the third after Rich McKinne in the third. The doubling. He went to third on Indians backed McDowell by an error by Lee Richard and scoring twice in the first on a come home on an infield out.

Trevino Leads Pack

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—stalked back to survey his 15 found at other stops on the foot birdie putt on the par 5 professional tour.

He punched it across the hole. He punched it across the "poor man's grass" only to fall he said. "Bent grass is for short and settle for a six-inch millionaires."

Larry Ziegler, who set the opening pack Thursday with a chunky Texan had done well near record 62, fell back to a 71 Friday—mainly because of a 36 back nine at Colonial Country Club to take a narrow one stroke lead into today's third round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas Memphis Classic.

"You just sit over there and don't stand me up," Trevino shouted at the entertainer when he spotted him sitting on a bleachers surrounding the final three way tie at 136 with Randy Wolff and Ted Hayes.

The field for the final two rounds of the chase for the top prize of $35,000 was pared to 75 Trevino told newsmen that he men with those falling below liked the Bermuda green here in comparison with the grass he's bags.

Three hot-shot British cars that stole the show in qualifying and have racing people wondering whether they're "super cars" head the fastest field Saturday for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's annual 500-mile duel with danger.

Castano helped his own cause with a two-run double and a single. Bob Mattice had a perfect day at the plate for the Highlanders as he went three-for-three, with three runs batted in. Carl Relyea went two-for-two. Doug Geer had a triple.

Bushmen—New Palz

Ike Castano was the big man in the Pine Bush lineup as he went three-for-four with a three-run triple in the seven-run third stanza. John Palonis had two hits for the losers. Ray Walters was credited with the win, Bill Schiller took the loss.

CHS—OCS

John Geuss was the batting star for the Statesmen as he went four-for-four, scoring three times. Don Hastings chipped in with four runs batted in. However, Oteora had a seven-run third inning, tied the game with a marker in the sixth and won it on another in the top of the seventh.

An error and a run producing baseball by Dick Nissen tied things at 8-8 in the sixth. Charlie Mazzola singled in the top of the seventh, moved to second on the next play, and scored on a single by Kevin Crosby. Tom Sebald was the winning pitcher, Don Hastings, the loser.

Saugerties Takes Two

Tom Whittaker posted a win against Lourdes and helped his own cause with a double. Lynn Barlow went two-for-three and scored three times. Rich Koegel added three for four.

Gerry Malgieri had a day that would make a major leaguer proud as he had four hits in four trips and scored four runs, driving in four more. Malgieri homered to deep centerfield, a solo shot in the first inning. His other hits were two doubles and a single.

Dave Smith and Dee White also had two doubles. Lynn Barlow and Koegel added doubles. Dave Fuller was the winning pitcher while Jim Foster took the loss.

Peers Slugger Gains 13th Win

LAS VEGAS

Jim Elder, the busiest boxer in the Peers Camp at Staatsburgh, N. Y., posted his seventh straight win Wednesday night as he knocked out Kenyetta Hocken-hall in the fourth round of their heavyweight battle.

The match was held in the ballroom of the Silver Slipper casino.

Elder, now 13-1, completely dominated his opponent, a protégé of the great light-heavyweight champion, Archie Moore. The Texas-native waded in with both fists flying and finally battered Hocken-hall to the canvass at 1:15 of the fourth round.

Elder, who is trained by Joe Fariello, now travels to Los Angeles, California, for a bout next week before returning to the Peers Camp. Elder is also scheduled to box the main event in a boxing show at Madison Square Garden later in June. His opponent will be Bill Drover, a highly-regarded slugger from England.

Blue Devils Defeat Foe

ELLENVILLE

John A. Coleman High School's golfers ended the season on a losing note yesterday as host Ellenville won a 12-0 match. Coleman had a 4-5 season.

Eric Krieger was medalist for the winners with a three-over-par 38 to take three points from Mike Doulin, who posted a 43.

Larry Gross topped Tony Manen, 40-3, while John Burger defeated Tim Mahoney, 41-3, 48-0.

In the final match of the day, Geoff Walsh carded a 46, but still managed three points over Eric Hauser's 52-0, preserving the Blue Devils' shutout.

Ellenville will play Rondout for the Ulster County Athletic League title next week at the Stone Dock course.

National Golf Day Monday at Area Clubs

KINGSTON All Ulster County golf clubs will participate in National Golf Day, the country's largest annual charity golf program on Monday, May 31. Founded by the Professional Golfers Association (PGA), National Golf Day is celebrating its 20th anniversary this year.

Using full handicaps, thousands of amateur golfers across the country will try to better the target scores established May 31 when U.S. Open Champion Tony Jacklin meets PGA champion Jack Nicklaus and Ladies PGA victor Shirley Englehorn takes on USGA Women's Open Champion, Donna Caponi in the traditional round of champions at the Old Warson Country Club in St. Louis.

Any amateur golfer, man or woman, with or without established handicap and any public or private course in the United States, including par 3's are eligible for National Golf Day.

Amateurs use their established handicaps or the Calloway handicap system to attempt to beat the target score established during the Challenge

Round by the lowest scoring men's or women's pro in relation to par. Men and women compete against their respective professional champions.

For example, if Nicklaus or Jacklin shoots a par 72 on Monday, all amateur net scores under par on their own courses win prizes. In earlier competition, the winning score was based on net regardless of par at the various courses.

All amateurs who beat their respective target score will receive an attractive plastic key holder autographed by their champion. Every entrant upon payment of $1.00 fee will receive a National Golf Day bag tag.

Old Warson Country Club in St. Louis, where the pros shoot the target scores, is the same course selected to host the 1971 Ryder Cup Matches, Sept. 16-18.

Amateurs may compete against the target scores for a two-week period after May 31 and may shoot as many rounds as they desire at $1.00 per round. National Golf Day has attracted more than 1.5 million men, women and children and raised approximately $2 million in charitable funds since its inception in 1952.

Proceeds of National Golf Day go to 27 major caddy scholarship programs and a variety of golf-related charities, including National Amputee Golf Association, educational and relief funds.

Approximately 300,000 amateurs have beaten target scores since the competition started. The lowest score ever in NGB was the 64 shot by Ben Hogan at Baltusrol Country Club in Springfield, N. J. and although 133,248 amateurs contributed more than $158,000, only 2,500 topped Hogan's feat—the fewest winners ever.

The biggest crop of winners, 45,354, turned up in 1962 when Gene Littler could do no better than 75 at the Aronimink Golf Course in Newton Square, Pa.

Sawyerkill Country Club, in addition to NGD, will stage handicap tournaments Saturday and Sunday. Woodstock has no tournaments over the holiday except National Golf Day.

Twaalfskill stages a 36-hole Member-Member tourney on Saturday and Sunday and NGD on Monday.

At Wiltwyck Country Club, the women's division starts its 36-hole Vice President's Tournament. Play extends through June 13. NGD is also slated there Monday.

Roundout, Pool, Golf and Tennis Association at Accord has a Seniors starting May 30 and running through June 6.

Women's Title Tourney Opens July 27

Seven Clubs Compete in UCWGA

KINGSTON Seven clubs will be represented in the 1971 Ulster County Women's Golf Association championship tournament which opens Monday, July 27, at Woodstock Country Club.

The 36-hole medal tournament winds up on Wednesday, Aug. 4, at Wiltwyck Country Club. Mrs. Harry Kennedy of Woodstock, vice president and tournament chairman, announced.

Participating clubs will be Shawangunk Country Club (Ellenville), Rip Van Winkle (Palmville), Sawyerkill Country Club (Saugerties), The Twaalfskill Club and Wiltwyck Country Club of Kingston, Woodstock Country Club and the new Roundout Pool, Golf and Tennis Club at Accord.

"Although the low gross score is recognized as the Ulster County woman's champion," said Mrs. Kennedy, "the tournament is open to any woman golfer in Ulster County with an accredited handicap of 36 or less."

The UCWGA tournament awards trophies for both gross and net scores.

"Since competition is the key to better golf," Mrs. Kennedy pointed out, "we encourage all women to participate. The officers of the association feel that more women players should participate and we welcome them. The tournament not only affords an opportunity to meet players from other clubs, but it is a lot of fun and a good way to evaluate one's golf game."

Mrs. Kennedy said that UCWGA also encouraged $1.00 memberships for those who may not wish to compete in the tournament but can contribute to the promotion of women's competitive golf in the county.

"Since the UCWGA is a non-profit organization," Mrs. Kennedy said, "we use the surplus funds as a contribution to worthy organizations. In 1970, our organization contributed $150 to the American Cancer Society."

Memberships or donations to the UCWGA may be handled through the following club representatives:

Sawyerkill — Mrs. Robert Schirmer, Mrs. Robert Cartright; Shawangunk — Mrs. James Murray, Mrs. Arnold Wolf; Rip Van Winkle — Mrs. Charles Steele, Mrs. William Brinnier; Wiltwyck — Mrs. Harvey Bostic, Mrs. Clifford Spiesman; Twaalfskill — Mrs. Richard Every, Mrs. Michael Groppus; Woodstock — Mrs. Allen Dean Elwyn, Mrs. George Rusk; Roundout — Mrs. William Barrett.

The officers are: Mrs. Bernard Carpinelli, Wiltwyck, president; Mrs. Harry Kennedy, Woodstock, vice president; Mrs. William Decker, Roundout, secretary; Mrs. William Merrill, Twaalfskill, treasurer; Mrs. Donald Sprague, Shawangunk, nominating chairman.

A Friendly Winner

SAUGERTIES There were two men down and the bases were full when Bud Smith came to bat in the Saugerties Softball League Blue Division tilt between his Helms-moort Insurance team and Friendly Inn, which was leading 5-3, in the last inning.

Friendly Inn pitcher John King served up a toss to Smith who took a mighty swing and lofted the ball towards the power alley in left-center. But Wayne Dedrick scampered back, got under it, and made the catch to end the threat and the ball game.

Errors had played a major role in the contest as each team registered only one earned run. However, two hits by Mike Cummings helped the winners notch the triumph and move into first place in the division.

In White Division action, Jug's F Troop took the measure of Michael's Barber Shop, 5-3; Ted's Esso creamed A. J. Scarselli's, 23-8; and the Youth Center zapped State Wide Car-peting, 14-4.

F Troop became the first White Division team to get two wins when it beat Michael's. The winners were leading 5-0 in the contest and managed to hold off late drive by the losing side.

Dave Ralston had two hits for F Troop as did Tom Connor for Michael's.

Ted's Esso scored 15 runs in the third inning to beat A. J. Scarselli's and set a new record in the process. Losing pitcher Joe Palumbo and reliever Dan Simmons also had the distinction of entering the record books as they walked 22 men between them. Palumbo passed 17.

John Brown and Don O'Connor hit grand-slam homers for Ted's while Simmons stroked a two-run blast for Scarselli's.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 29, 1971

The Daily Freeman will not publish Monday, May 31 in observance of the Memorial Day holiday.

Memorial Day

Once a year on Memorial Day, we remember those who have given their lives on the battlefields in the hope of a better world for others by paying them homage in the cemeteries and participating in public ceremonies and parades. But as the graveside services are taking place men still will be falling on the fields of battle making the supreme sacrifice for us who live. Let us give a fervent prayer that the Vietnam war will be ended when May 30, 1972 roll around. There are far too many now beneath the flags and white crosses.

Memorial Day parades and services will be held in Kingston and throughout the Ulster and Northern Dutchess County communities. Participating in these activities honoring America's war dead will be many young people who will feel a wave of patriotism and zeal to serve which will become permanently a part of their character. Parents and public speakers on this solemn day have both an opportunity and responsibility to these youngsters. It is within their power to direct strong emotions aroused on Memorial Day into wise expression.

Our young people should be taught on this occasion not to glorify war but to respect the faith and courage of those who fought and died for their country when there seemed to be no other way to solve the problem confronting it. That the people of this great nation have a high destiny of leadership in the practice of justice, freedom and brotherhood of man and that this beautiful land is well worth their love and service as good citizens.

Honor the dead, then, in thought and word. And honor the dead by living as they, in their best moments, dreamed of living.

Shameful Sentence

The "slap on the wrist" sentence meted out to the drug pusher by Ulster County Judge Raymond J. Mino will not deter other pushers from peddling their wares to the young people of this area. Convicted of 10 felony and five misdemeanor counts of criminal sale of dangerous drugs or possession of dangerous drugs, the pusher got a total five-year maximum sentence, which makes him eligible for parole after serving 18 months.

This sentence by Judge Mino does not reflect an awareness of the seriousness of the drug problem in the community. If we are to prevent a further spread of the drug problem among our youth, where the greatest growth in recruitment of addicts begins, we must have the cooperation of the courts. While there always will be a role for law-enforcement, the permanent solution cannot be based solely on just arresting offenders.

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt's comment on the sentence "that this was not a situation where this man was an addict and selling drugs to support his habit," points out forcefully that a harsh penalty should have been imposed in this case.

The district attorney also was rightfully upset when Judge Mino after hearing the attorney for the defendant in a lengthy plea, refused to listen to any recommendation of the assistant district attorney, who was representing the people. This decision by the judge baffles us.

Thomas Mayone, director of Ulster County District Attorney's Narcotics Squad, has sounded the alarm of the promiscuous use of narcotics by our young people. He has presented documented evidence that between 10 and 12 per cent of the young people in the Kingston School Consolidated District are using marijuana or some other drug beyond the experimental stage.

Law enforcement agencies cannot do the job single-handed. The war on narcotics must be a major part of a general drive which begins with the pusher, who when apprehended, will receive the punishment he deserves for deriving income from human degradation and misery.

It's a shame and a tragedy when a convicted pusher gets away with it.

Safety Is Economical

Insurance costs, like everything else, keep going up. But there's a happy exception in at least one field of insurance: Workmen's compensation is providing a better return on the premium dollar than ever before.

According to the Journal of Insurance, workmen's compensation benefits on a countrywide basis have risen more than 100 per cent over a 30-year period while rate levels have increased only 16.6 per cent.

The reason is that loss-producing accidents experienced by covered firms have dropped by almost half during the period. This in turn is attributed to safety engineering services provided by insurers, plus the incentive of individual premium reductions tied to company safety records.

Americans will spend $18.5 billion on beer, wine and liquor this year, the Department of Agriculture estimates. Per capita cost runs to $92.50. Growing consumer income, the rising number of young adults and the social acceptance of drinking combine to raise the record.

Calling the Roll

David Lawrence Says Drug Problem in Country Much Greater Than Realized

WASHINGTON — Although the drug problem is causing the American people more and more concern, in some quarters there is a reluctance to grapple with it and a tendency to excuse the use of certain drugs as not harmful.

But day by day evidence is being accumulated to show that drugs are responsible not only for many crimes but also for misbehavior in demonstrations and for disorder that have subsequently grown into big tragedies.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird frankly stated this week in a news conference in West Germany that the United States Army in Europe has racial and drug problems. His words are the first confirmation of this that has come from a cabinet officer. He declared:

"There is no question but that we do have some racial and drug problems among the United States Army in Europe. I think we are making some progress in dealing with these problems. But any commander who says problems do not exist just is not performing his job adequately, because the problems do exist."

The Secretary of Defense also said that this situation pertains even more to American soldiers in Asia because of the accessibility of certain drugs there. He commended the West German government for having moved to prevent importation of drugs. But, as is the case with the United States, the drugs flow in across the borders just the same because the illicit trade is so lucrative.

The extent of drug addiction in this country is much greater than is generally realized. But drug was spread to college students, and then to youngsters attending high school. Now it is beginning to be admitted that drugs are being used even by boys and girls in elementary schools.

The effect of drugs on emotional stability varies, of course, with the individual. But many automobile accidents are believed to be the result of drivers' having taken narcotics, sometimes in big doses. It is conceded that a great deal of crime is committed by drug addicts who turn to robbery to get money to support their habit. Some persons who commit crimes are under the influence of drugs, when friction between groups arises and individual members are on drugs, they are more apt to be persuaded to malicious acts. Lots of the crowds that assemble at rock festivals or gather in parks for the purpose of agitating or demonstrating include persons who possess drugs and pass them on to others.

The drug problem has become one of the most serious that the federal, state and local governments have faced, because many crimes have unquestionably been the result of addiction to drugs. The situation confronting the military commanders, as mentioned by Secretary Laird, is a grave one. How can men in the military service who are supposed to be alert for action at any moment be able to perform their duties when they are under the influence of drugs? In such cases, whole military units could be endangered.

Unfortunately, there probably have been many instances in which drug abuse has occurred among servicemen, but their commanders have not taken any measures or seen fit to report them to their superiors. It will not be surprising, therefore, if the public announcement which Secretary Laird made in West Germany will be followed by other steps when he returns to the Defense Department in Washington. Stricter rules may be imposed to prevent the use of drugs by men in the Armed Forces, particularly when they are on duty.

What Secretary Laird has reported from Europe has, to be sure, been mentioned again and again with respect to Southeast Asia. It is estimated that between 10 and 15 per cent of American servicemen in South Vietnam are users of heroin, and many more smoke marijuana, which is grown extensively in the area. The smuggling of drugs into a country like South Vietnam is not difficult. Drug peddlers are always particularly active wherever American troops have a base. Secretary Laird intends, however, to make it harder for them to carry on their drug business with American servicemen in the future.

U. S. Mistake in Laos

Meo Guerrillas' Punch Is Lost

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—A long time friend who has been operating for years as a guerrilla in northern Laos has sent very bad news indeed.

The Meo underground, developed with care and finesse, has been shattered. Much of this was the U.S. doing, although unintentional. Not long ago, top American specialists in guerrilla war had great hopes for the underground operations in northern Laos. It was not like Vietnam, where we have attempted to fight a guerrilla war with conventional armies. In Laos, the underground war was fought as guerrilla wars should be.

We had turned the tables on the North Vietnamese. The Meo guerrillas in Laos were almost impossible for Hanoi's armies to pick off.

Meo irregulars made life increasingly difficult for the invaders. They were using Mao Tse-tung's Chi Minh tactics—and using them effectively. Gradually a small Meo group here and another there were given guns and told to defend themselves and their homes against anyone. This they did with enthusiasm.

The countryside in the north and gradually to the south became dotted with these underground irregulars. When the enemy advanced, they scattered and infiltrated to attack him in the rear. When the enemy retreated, they advanced. They raised havoc in the enemy's back yard and pinpricked him to exasperation. They slowed his drives and imperiled his long supply lines. The North Vietnamese soldier knew no peace.

This program progressed nicely. The Meo are excellent fighters. Like the effective Viet Cong guerrillas of the early 1960s, they were civilians by day and fighters by night.

The very lack of Meo organization, their crude weapons and their lack of uniforms were strengths. They had no complicated supply lines to guard. The North Vietnamese could not pin them down. If a unit was trapped, the loss in men was small.

Then someone in Washington began to get ideas. These local guerrillas should have more supplies, better equipment, more effective weapons. They should have organization. They should be built into military units.

It was decided to support them regularly with air strikes. They were provided with some artillery.

This brought changes. It meant larger units, established positions, supply lines, coordinated operations. Instead of moving in swiftly against the enemy, the Meo began to wait for air strikes. Or for artillery.

Instead of moving silently down trails, they hunkered after helicopter transport, which is noisy and visible. They became bogged down with the problems of supply. Attacks were delayed while the Meo waited for supplies and equipment.

So they lost the advantage of secrecy and surprise. In retreat, they could no longer fade silently into the landscape. Cemented to their supplies and to base areas, they became increasingly vulnerable to attacks by superior enemy forces.

Cheap, limited, conventional North Vietnamese operations could now weed out the smaller Meo units one by one. Major Meo forces, now conventionalized, could be encircled.

Taking advantage of these opportunities, the North Vietnamese have gradually picked off the Meo units.

As a result, the supply of Meo manpower has become extremely limited.

With the decline of the Meo forces, our power to affect the war in Laos slides sharply downward.

Jack Anderson Says Anderson Man Makes First Tour of Israeli Side of Suez

WASHINGTON—The first inspection of the Israeli side of the Suez Canal since the Israeli-Egyptian cease-fire ended last February has just been completed by my associate Joe Spear.

Accompanied by an armed escort Spear took a 4½ hour, kidney-jolting ride across the Sinai Desert to the embattled canal zone. Skirting the town of Gaza—one of the few occupied areas where hostile Arabs continue to mine roads and toss grenades at military vehicles—he entered El Arish, a Mediterranean resort town of sparkling, palm-dotted beaches.

The beaches are empty now, except for a few lonely fishermen. Scattered among the palm trees are crumbling, pock-marked villas, abandoned by Egyptian officers and the wealthy elite of Arab society during the 1967 war.

West of El Arish, the desert is populated only by Israeli soldiers and Bedouin nomads, a fiercely independent people who claim to be descendants of Romanians who crossed the Mediterranean hundreds of years ago. Their chief source of income, before the Israeli military authorities cracked down, was from the transportation of hashish by camel caravan across Sinai from the eastern Arab countries to Egypt.

They still manage to smuggle a small amount across the desert, but now they are largely dependent on government handouts and donations—much of it from America in the form of soybean meal.

Spear approached the famous Bar-Lev Line at Kantara, a former Egyptian resort city which survived the Six-Day War but was destroyed by Egypt's own guns in Nasser's war of attrition.

Cable From Suez

Cables Spear: "Just beyond Kantara, we approached the canal and were met by an Israeli officer with flaming red hair. He was the second in command of the company which mans the Kantara fortification. He led me into what amounts to an underground city: rows and rows of steel tunnels and bunkers containing galleys, shower rooms, sleeping quarters, and dining areas, all buried beneath tons of sandbags.

Guards sat atop the bunkers behind rows of concertina wire, their machine-guns ready to be pointed into the air. I walked to the very edge of the Suez and gazed across vivid blue water at Egyptian soldiers 200 yards away. Behind me, two Israelis sat in a tower and stared through a telescope at an Egyptian soldier in a similar tower who was staring right back.

"A month or so ago," the redheaded officer informed me, "the Egyptians decided they needed a better view of our bunkers and slit trenches. They ran a fire truck up to the edge of the canal, and an Egyptian soldier scrambled up the ladder to shoot pictures. The ladder was swaying in the wind, soon the soldier dropped his camera and began clutching the ladder. A few more minutes passed and he upchucked all over his comrades below. They had to go up and haul him down!"

"There was little activity on the Egyptian side this day, which, according to my escort officer, was unusual. The Egyptians frequently shout and jeer at the Israelis, but the Israelis are under orders not to respond. Sometimes, however, the escort officer confided to me, they cannot restrain themselves and they acknowledge the jeers with obscene gestures."

Battle of Loudspeakers

"Loudspeakers line the Egyptian side of the Suez,

over which the Arabs broadcast tape-recorded music interspersed with propaganda. 'Sometimes,' my escort told me, 'they play their tapes at the wrong speed. Since they don't understand Hebrew, they are unaware of it.' The Israeli soldiers shout back that if they are going to be forced to listen to propaganda, the least the Egyptians could do is to broadcast it so that it is understandable.

"As the cease-fire neared its end last February, I was informed, it was not unusual to see an Egyptian officer scramble up the bank, hold up a number of fingers to indicate the number of truce days remaining, then draw his finger across his throat to signify what was in store for the Israelis when the cease-fire ended.

"No shots were fired, however, and the Egyptians have used the respite to strengthen their positions. Above the chatter of the birds, I could hear the clank of bulldozers."

The Egyptians were building huge, pyramid-like fortifications, my escort officer said, but for what reason he hadn't figured out yet. Israeli intelligence officers surmise that the Arabs are converting to an Israeli-style defense. Because they are heavily outnumbered, the Israelis maintain strong concentrations of forces at various points along the canal and guard the rest of the area with combat patrols. The Egyptians on the other hand, defend their side with a solid line of soldiers from one end of the canal to the other.

"Just behind this line, I was told, are quartered thousands of additional Egyptian soldiers. They train daily, under Russian supervision, and wait impatiently for the day when they can put it all to use."

Henry J. Taylor Says Nixon Warned of Soviet Missiles

President Nixon's re-emphasis on the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) actually was bred by new warnings from CIA Director Richard M. Helms. Behind the scenes, it appeared to Mr. Nixon that it is now or never.

When the Soviet violated the atomic test-ban understanding with the United States she became the only nation to have successfully test-fired a nuclear-armed missile at an incoming missile. Thus the U.S.S.R. is demonstrably (not merely on paper) far ahead of us in missile defense.

The Soviet interceptor is called GALOSH, and Mr. Helms counts this defense system's operative sites at 90 and finds the Soviet working day and night, around the clock, on 30 more. These were detected by our SAMOS "spy bird" photographic satellites.

This is the crunch. Our country and the free world alike rely not on the ability of the United States to win a nuclear war but on our ability to deter it. In short, not through retaliation after our country is mainly destroyed but by the Soviet's recognition of our overwhelming deterrent force. Yet the Soviet's GALOSH means she has largely cancelled out our Minuteman missile—our most credible deterrent protecting the free world.

Moreover, Mr. Helms grimly updated to Mr. Nixon the status of the Soviet super-giant SS-9 intercontinental ballistic missiles, now the largest and most powerful in the world. The SALT talks have been on for more than a year and a half. They began Nov. 17, 1969. At that time the Soviet had an estimated 300 SS-9s. And in recent months the increasing number of immense, deep-protected launching silos to hold them has been reported. But Mr. Helms told the President that the Soviet has utilized the time since the SALT talks began to build an additional 100 SS-9s. He placed the total today at around 400.

These 400, Mr. Helms said, could just about destroy our Minuteman defense force if the Soviet chose to strike.

Nor is that all, behind the scenes, that prompted the President's re-emphasis. Our MIRV is a missile containing multiple warheads that allow one missile rocket to attack several targets at the same time. The Soviet is now similarly equipping its SS-9s and—perhaps most shocking of all—the CIA agents in the U.S.S.R. find the Soviet's version even more advanced than our MIRV.

Additionally, the CIA agents report that the Soviet has an incipient follow-on generation of SS-9s. Until now this had been only a rumor. In fact, to expand the training of technicians for this follow-on generation the Soviet has opened, on something of a crash basis, two new training schools at Stavropol and Saratov and reopened the closed Boris Oglebsk missile training center.

Next, Mr. Helms dealt with the latest sea-based atomic missile realities, for the increasingly accurate and widely "spreading" MIRV-type warheads that we both possess threaten fixed, land-based intercontinental missiles with obsolescence. Besides, nuclear missile-carrying submarines cannot be tracked and are not where they were even a few minutes ago.

Our Navy's Poseidon missile is a difficult adaption of the land-based MIRV. At a cost approaching $100 million each, and requiring 14 months for each conversion, our Navy is now converting 31 of our 41 Polaris-type nuclear subs to carry Poseidons.

This began with the successful conversion of the James Madison and Daniel Boone and means 16 H-bomb (not A-bomb) Poseidon missiles aboard each sub, each with a range of about 2,500 miles and each with at least 10 warheads that can be separately targeted.

We have 81 nuclear subs. The Soviet has 65. But while our own construction, conversion, etc., program is lagging, Mr. Helms told the President that the Soviet is now capable of launching one nuclear submarine a month.

The CIA expects them to be adding 26. Mr. Helms forecast to Mr. Nixon that the Soviet by then will have 135, compared to our 107.

In President Nixon's opinion the Soviet may use this immense, aggregated missile build-up for a first strike or, more probably, use this superior nuclear power to take greater international political risks. And his current emphasis on the SALT talks, and his words of hope, have a far deeper ring of alarm than we know.

BERRY'S WORLD

High Flying for Area Teen

By JEAN F. DOLAN

STONE RIDGE High flying dreams of a Stone Ridge youth really got off the ground recently.

Stuart Wilber aims to be an airline pilot someday. And toward that goal he had his first solo flight on his 16th birthday May 22. He had logged in sufficient air hours to have made the flight when he was 14½ years old but the law specifies that student pilots must be 16 before they solo. The flight was made from Andersen Airport at Accord. Stuart has been under the air tutelage of his uncle, Samuel G. Wilber of Stone Ridge and it was his uncle's plane he used for the flight. To date he has logged almost 40 air hours.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilber of Peak Road, Stone Ridge, Stuart is a sophomore at Rondout Valley High School. He is a member of the Rondout Valley Chorus and has been active in a number of dance band groups, playing guitar and vocalizing. Characterized as "a very air

Youth in the News

Memorial Day weekend finds Youth in the News saluting this year's Santorski Scholarship winner.

Anita L. Smith of 38 Spaulding Lane, Saugerties will receive her award at Memorial Day ceremonies in Academy Green, Kingston, Monday. George C. Heppner, chairman of the Pfc. Michael P. Santorski Memorial Scholarship Fund Committee, announced the selection and presentation plans.

Anita, the daughter of Mrs. Arthur L. Smith and the late Mr. Smith will attend the State University of New York at Brockport where she plans to major in English.

While a student at Saugerties High School, Anita has been a member of the French Club, the Year Book Literary Staff and vice-president of the Girls Athletic Association. In addition, she teaches Sunday school at the Atonement Lutheran Church and is employed as a part-time cashier at Waldbaum's.

Anita, who plays the piano and accordion was one of the first members of Sing Out Saugerties and she also placed second in the VFW Loyalty Day Essay Contest in 1969.

In making the announcement, Heppner said that the committee was pleased with the number of applications received and with the outstanding qualifications of all the applicants.

Another girl to be singled out for honors recently is Bronwyn Ludlow, a junior at Rondout Valley Central High School who will represent the Ladies Auxiliary of Rosendale-Tilston Post 1219, American Legion at 1971 Girls State.

Alternate named was Ruth Poenicke. This year's session will be held at the State University of New York at Albany from Sunday, June 27 through Saturday, July 3.

The two girls were chosen by a faculty committee, and all members of the faculty had the opportunity to make the recommendations. Information in the group's annual member-over to Mrs. Wilfred Doolittle, ship awards banquet held at Girls State Chairman for the Post 1219 Auxiliary.

ANITA L. SMITH

Cited for outstanding achievement at the College of Business Administration, Northern Arizona University, recently was Diane Raleigh of Kingston. She was named outstanding business education senior at the annual awards banquet at the Flagstaff Ariz. campus.

Deans list rating was earned this past semester by Linda Sue Ropp of RD 4, Kingston. She is a student at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, Mich.

A Kingston youth was among marketing and advertising students who served as a test group for an advertising campaign. Tom Leahy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leahy of this city, a student at Columbia Greene Community College, was one of the class group which went to New York City recently to take part in the testing.

Planned by J. Walter Thompson, the world's largest advertising agency, the test was to provide a national manufacturer with the reaction of small town youth to a product not yet on the market. Students gave their views on the product, proposed a brand name and suggested an advertising campaign.

The trip included tours of art and graphics departments, television production studios and meetings with account executives.

David R. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll King, Lennox Avenue, Glenford, a senior at State University of New York Agricultural and Technical College was named to the dean's list there for the winter quarter. He is majoring in agronomy.

Linda K. Bettle of Kingston was listed for honors during the winter quarter at Central Washington State College, Ellensburg, Wash., where she is a junior.

Daniel J. Peters of Kingston has been named to the dean's list at Cornell University where he is enrolled in the New York State College of Agriculture. A member of the Class of 1972, he is the son of Donald Peters of RD 4, Kingston.

John Alden Robinson of Airport Road, Accord was cited for high academic achievement at Ohio State University in its winter quarter honor listing.

Russell I. Witkowski of 193 Greenkill Avenue, a fifth year student in the College of Science at Rochester Institute of Technology, is another dean's list honoree.

School Activities

The school year is coming to a close but the flurry of activity is reaching a peak in most of the area's high schools.

The annual New Paltz Central High School Girls Athletic Association mother-daughter banquet was held recently at the high school cafeteria.

Thirty-one members received certificates and appropriate awards for their significant participation in and contributions to the association. In addition more than 50 awards were given to girls participating in interscholastic sports during the year.

Officers for the coming year were announced as follows:

Joan Donahue, president; Mary Robertson, vice president; Judy Cole, treasurer; Rita Freer, secretary; Jane Baumgartner, point recorder; Debbie Harp and Linda Lardiere, sport head.

Also at New Paltz this week, the combined choir and chorus presented a concert of choral and vocal music. Senior class members presented the finale which included a solo by Donna Grainger accompanied by Andrea Coy and a senior singers special featuring barbershop boys and girls.

A very special assembly program for Spanish American students at the Ellenville High School was held recently. More than 30 students from grades seven through 12 attended the program and heard Oaquin Jimenez, assistant director of financial aid at State University of New York at New Paltz, as guest speaker.

He told of his background and his experiences in South American countries where Spanish is the main language spoken. A question and answer period followed the address.

Angelo Caban, senior, introduced the guest speaker. The program was arranged by the guidance department.

As the final spring semester comes close to the end for seniors at Rondout Valley High School, word comes of outstanding college acceptance records.

Seventy-five seniors received a total of 115 acceptances to 52 different colleges and other institutions. Several applications are still pending and more acceptances are expected.

Out of a total of 172 members of the class of 1971, 97 students filed 202 college applications. Of the 115 acceptances, 38 came from Ulster County Community College. Other community colleges and state colleges or universities were next in total number of acceptances.

"Roads Scholars" represented Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services

vocational education department at the Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest in Freeport this past week. Competing for Ulster BOCES were John Doski and Carson Mesnard, both of Walkkill. They were sponsored by Young's Motors Inc.

The Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest originated in 1949 as a local event in Los Angeles with 50 students from 17 high schools participating. Today, more than 2,000 high schools and colleges representing all 50 states—with a total auto shop enrollment of more than 165,000 students—participate each year in this nationally famous competition.

The purpose of the contest is to recognize and honor outstanding youth auto mechanic students and to encourage them to make a career as automobile mechanics.

Trouble Shooting has placed more than 17,000 young men in full or part-time jobs as auto mechanics. Since the contest became a national event in 1962, the Chrysler-Plymouth Division of Chrysler Motors Corporation has made available scholarships for 180 students.

The Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest is an outstanding example of cooperation between industry and education.

TEEN SCENE

By LEI

Last summer it was a far-out trend. This year it seems to fit into the "everyone's-doing-it" bag. If you aren't planning on spending some or all of the summer on a commune, you probably have at least one friend who is going to—although the definition of a "commune" varies widely. (At this time it can be anything from a clump of leaking tents squatted on somebody's woodlot, to a "commune motel" trying to lure the affluent but hopefully "with it" people.)

The commune concept is far from new. When your parents were in their teens, there were "communities" often set up on the farm principle. Locally, there are or have been communities operating for decades in such places as Newburgh, Tivoli, Woodstock, and Rifton. Usually these older communities revolved around some religious or sociological concept, or both.

Most of the communities had a few things in common—they strove for simplicity, self sufficiency, and a purity to be found in a return to the earth and nature. People sought, then, as now, to find a peace and contentment removed from the often hectic and materialistic pace of life today.

Many people find that they seek the commune, or community, but others find the experience disappointing, and many communes find that they fail in their main goal, although they may be a general success. Why is it that many communes become a disillusioning trip?

A major reason is that people on communes are still people—and they're still the same people they were in the classroom, at the dance, or driving down the street. Many teens go to communes looking for "peace" in one sense or another. However, peace—in ourselves or in the world—is something that comes from the inside, not the outside. While the environment does affect our natures to some extent, a change of scene and peace will not work any miracles, and the changes that are brought about may tend to wear off after awhile.

A person who finds people they meet generally friendly, who relates well to humanity and their environment will find the people on a commune the same way. But those who find undue aggression, stress, and lack of harmony in their everyday life will encounter the same problems in a commune.

Since one of the basic concepts of most communes is all-for-one and one-for-all, with everyone pitching in to help, there is no room for the slacker, the lazy, or the inconsiderate. However, they will be there, since a commune is no different from the average cross-section of society. And there will be incommunicative people and bossy people, and people who want to make themselves the star at the expense of others. Resentment and jealousies can not help but result—and as the expression goes, their goes the neighborhood.

Many communes try to offer an escape from the evils of the world, while the members work to better things. However, on this crowded planet, it is impossible to create a separate environment. Polluted water, insecticides, nuclear weapons, and chemical hazards will be shared by all, no matter how isolated they may make themselves.

At this time, communes can offer little but a change of scenery and pace, and chance to make new friends and learn new (and old) skills. If this is all you enter the commune experience expecting, perhaps the life is for you this summer. However, if you expect some major alteration in your viewpoint, lifestyle, or personality, you may be disappointed. If these things are to be, they will occur no matter how you spend your summer.

Candy Strippers Call

KINGSTON

The last call is out for Candy Strippers.

The Benedictine Hospital is now accepting applications for the Candy Stripper program.

Girls must be 14 years of age in order to apply. The director of volunteers at the hospital may be contacted for further information. Deadline for applications is June 1 so girls interested in volunteering their services to help out at the hospital should hurry with their calls.

Summer vacation will soon be here and Candy Striping might be just the satisfying community service project for mid-teens.

College for Juniors

STONE RIDGE Ulster County Community College now is accepting Summer Sessions applications from qualified high school juniors who want to take a college course under an Early Admissions program, according to Charles Schenck, director of admissions.

The applications are being processed by Schenck and Miss Jean Miles, an admissions counselor at the college.

"Many high school students who have completed their junior year are eligible to enroll in college courses during the summer before their senior year and also may enroll in college courses while they are still enrolled in a high school program," said Schenck.

Not all students who have completed the junior year of high school are eligible for the Early Admissions Program. But all high school juniors are encouraged to inquire of their eligibility from a high school guidance counselor.

All area guidance counselors are familiar with the Early Admissions Program and have the required application forms available.

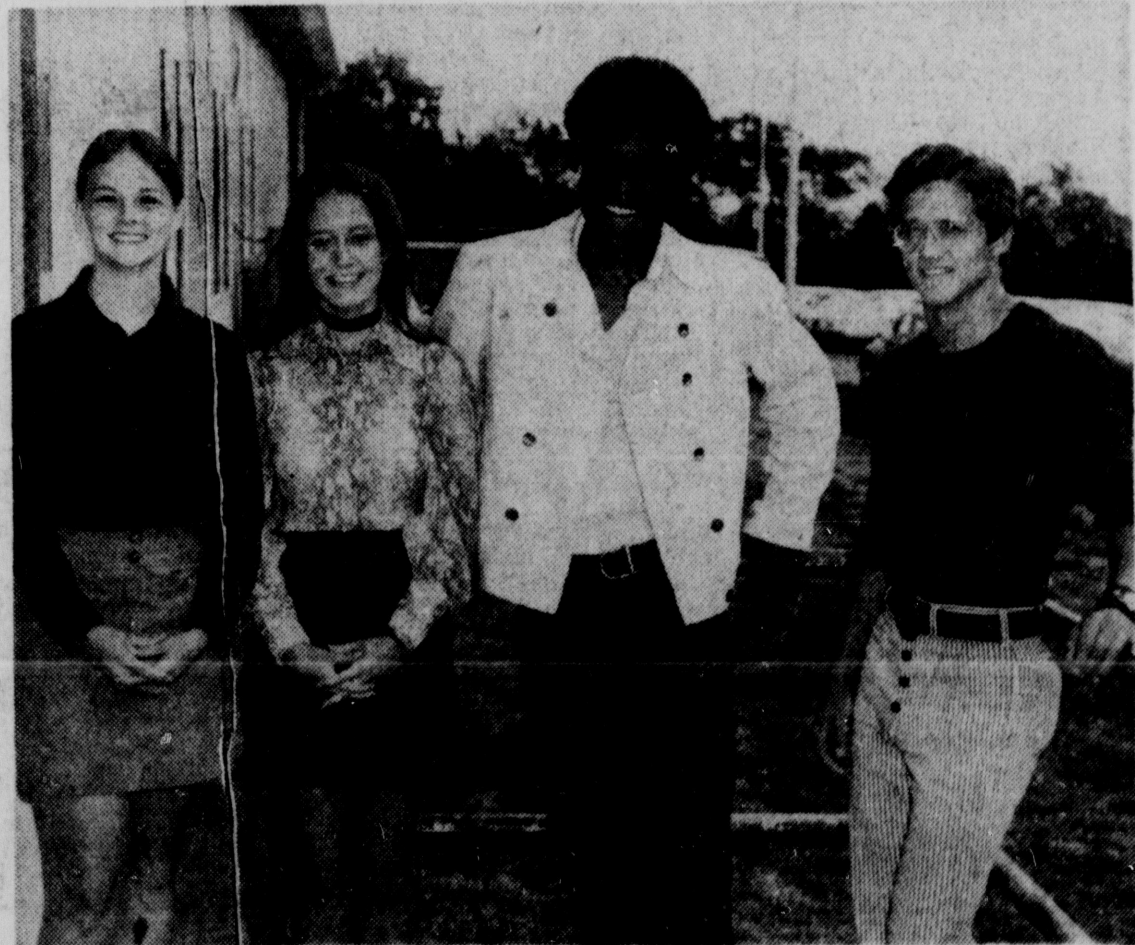

Schenck said that students who have enrolled in the Early Admissions Program have been quite successful and are able to apply the college credits earned to their program at UCCC if they wish to matriculate at Ulster or to any other State University unit in which they might enroll.

A couple of students who participated in the Early Admissions Program at Ulster last summer have been registered during the 1970-71 academic year for courses while attending high school on a full-time basis, according to Schenck. They plan to return to the community college this summer to take additional courses.

"In this manner, it is possible for one of these students to enter his freshman year at Ulster in September with 18 credit hours accumulated, which is a full semester of work," Schenck reported.

All students completing their junior year this year or approaching graduation who are interested in this program are encouraged to contact their high school guidance counselor, or Schenck or Miss Miles at UCCC.

MRS. JOHN LIMA JR.
(Dutchmen Enterprises)

Miss Marcia Jean Dreiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dreiser of 103 Gross Street, Kingston, became the bride of John Lima Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lima of Pine Street, Tillson, on Saturday, May 22 at St. Mary's Church, Kingston.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the double ring ceremony. Theodore Riccobono, organist, provided traditional wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a white lace gown over taffeta gown styled with puffed sleeves and a lace bodice trimmed with rhinestones. Her floor-length mantilla featured a bow effect in front and she carried a Bible covered with orchids and streamers.

Linda LaBudda of High Falls served as maid of honor in an empire styled gown of turquoise and white floral print. She wore a matching bow headpiece and carried a basket of yellow, blue, and white daisies.

James O'Sullivan of Rosendale served as best man. Ushers were John Neilson of Rosendale and Ronny Dreiser of Kingston brother of the bride.

A garden party reception for 150 guests was held at 96 Newkirk Avenue, Kingston. For her wedding trip to South Carolina, the bride chose a navy blue and white pantsuit with off white orchid corsage.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Kingston High School and is employed by New York Telephone Company Plant Department. Her husband, an alumnus of KHS, class of 1965, served three years in the U.S. Marine Corps in Vietnam, and is the junior vice commander of Disabled American Veterans, Chapter 156, Kingston, and is now a student at Ulster County Community College.

Mr. and Mrs. Lima Jr. will reside at 96 Newkirk Avenue, Kingston.

Engagement Information

All engagement notices should include names, addresses, parents of bride and groom, places of employment, and date of wedding.

Notices must be signed by parents or guardian and must include telephone number where party may be reached during the day for verification.

Snapshots, polaroid, color photographs are not acceptable. Black and white wallet-size pictures are advised.

About the Folks

Miss Winifred Sullivan of Kingston, retired school teacher, is a resident at Senior Citizens Home at Benedictine Hospital, Kingston.

Slover-Briody Wedding Announced

MRS. ROBERT A. BRIODY

St. Mary's Church in Kingston was the setting for the wedding of Miss Leslie Ann Slover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Slover of 315 Hasbrouck Avenue, Kingston, and Robert Anthony Briody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Briody Sr. of 112 Cedar Street, Kingston, on Sunday, May 16.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, assistant pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Theodore Riccobono, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Arrangements of white gladioli and chrysanthemums decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a full length gown of silk organza fashioned with an empire bodice of lace and sleeves. Her two-tier silk illusion veil fell softly from a petal-crown of tiny pearls and crystals.

She carried a nosegay of white daisies with long white streamers.

Miss Jean Sickler of 71 Derrinbacher Street, Kingston, was maid of honor in a powder blue A-line gown styled with daisy trim on the sleeves and neckline. Tiny matching bows served as her headpiece and she carried a nosegay of white daisies with blue centers.

Richard Nicolletti, Cedar Street, Kingston, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Frank Briody, brother of the bridegroom, Stone Ridge; and Leon M. Zates, uncle of the bride, Kingston.

A reception for 80 guests was held at the Alpine Restaurant, DeWitt Mills Road, Kingston.

For her wedding trip to Lake George, the bride selected a tan and brown pantsuit.

The bride, a 1970 graduate of Kingston High School, is a student nurse at Kingston Hospital and is employed in the dietary department of Kingston Hospital. Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School, class of 1970, completed a course at Allied Machinery in Springfield, Mass., and is employed at Ace Transmission in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Briody will reside at 229 Greenkill Avenue, Kingston.

MD Degree Means Money to Outsiders

DEAR ABBY: I am the wife of a young M.D. who is currently taking his residency training. I am so tired of people asking me, "When is your husband going to be a real doctor?"

Abby, don't these ninies know that when a person receives his M.D. degree, it means Medical Doctor? Most M.D.'s further their training by taking their internship for one year and residency training anywhere from one to four years, or even more. But nevertheless, he is a real doctor when he graduates from medical school.

REAL ANNOYED
DEAR REAL: What your friends probably meant was, "When is your husband going into practice and make some real money?"

DEAR ABBY: We were married for 14 years before our son was born. I was 44 and Bill was 48 and we had given up all hope of having any children. It sure was a shock to both of us.

Well, Sandor is eight now, and every time I try to discipline him, his father jumps in and says (right in front of the boy) "Don't be so hard on the kid. He's only a baby."

Last night I told Sandor to turn off his TV as it was almost midnight, so he says to me, "Oh, drop dead!" I pulled him out of bed and gave him a few good ones with my open hand on his bottom, and he yelled for his father to come and "save" him.

Bill yanked the kid away from me as if to protect him from some cruel monster and said, "Don't you ever lay a hand on my son again." The boy's tears dried up in two minutes and he stuck his tongue out at me. So, what am I supposed to do with a kid like that?

ALL BY MYSELF
DEAR ALL: The problem is not the kid, it's your would enjoy staying home with his wife gone.

My mother in law has never been neglected by us. We visit her often and invite her out. She's lived a good life and was always on the go when she was younger, so I don't see why she should expect to accompany us on our vacation, do you? My wife is soft-hearted, but she really would rather not go away if her mother goes with us. How can we get out of taking her? Or should we stay home again this year.

STUCK
DEAR STUCK: What's wrong with simply telling the lady that you have planned a "second honeymoon" trip?

DEAR ABBY: I've read many letters in your column from widows and divorcees who are lonely because their married friends have "forgotten" them. Let me tell you the other side of the story: My husband and I were very friendly with another couple. Then the husband died. We invited the widow over for dinner often, included her in all our parties and even took her places with us so she wouldn't be alone. My husband made minor repairs around her house and spent many hours helping her settle her financial problems. He even had "fatherly" talks with her children.

Well I think by now you have the picture. Before long the "poor little widow" took over my husband and I was the one without a man. Lost: One husband and one friend.

Look Here Homemaker

Dictionary for Home Buyers
If you've thought about buying a home, you may have been confused by some of the terminology. Below are just a few definitions which may be useful to know, especially if you're going to be house-hunting soon. Good luck in your house hunting, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist.

ABSTRACT OF TITLE—Condensed history of the title; summarizes various links in chain of title, together with statement of all liens, charges, or encumbrances. Purpose is to show that ownership of property is uncontested and clear up to the current owner. Always ask to see it before you buy a property.

AGREEMENT OF SALE—A written agreement whereby the purchaser agrees to buy certain real estate and the seller agrees to sell according to the terms stated.

AMORTIZATION—The payment of a debt on an installment basis. The more you pay off, the more the loan is amortized.

APPRAISAL—An estimate of quantity, quality, or value of real estate. Both FHA and VA both send you a copy of their appraisals. When you get a conventional mortgage, make sure you ask to see it. An appraisal is mainly a market evaluation; what the house would sell for in case of foreclosure.

ASSESSED VALUATION—A value placed on property by a unit of government for taxation purposes.

BINDER—A agreement to cover a down payment for the purchase of real estate as evidence of good faith on the part of the purchaser.

CERTIFICATE OF TITLE—This paper proves ownership of a house, and contains a legal description of both house and land.

CLOSING COSTS—Various expenses involved in the transaction of selling a house, changing title, procuring and processing a mortgage. All these are paid over and above the price of the house and lot.

CLOSING STATEMENT—An accounting of funds in a real estate sale made by a broker to the seller and buyer.

DEPRECIATION—Loss in value, brought about by deterioration through ordinary wear and tear. The usual rate is from 2 per cent to 3 per cent of total price each year.

EASEMENTS, RIGHTS—A neighbor may have the legal right to use part of your property (such as a driveway) because a previous owner gave him an easement right.

EQUITY—The interest or value which an owner has in real estate in excess of the mortgage. When your mortgage is fully paid up, you have 100 per cent equity in your house.

INSTALLMENT CONTRACT—Purchase of real estate upon an installment basis; upon default, payments are forfeited.

LAND CONTRACT—A contract for the purchase of real estate upon an installment basis; upon payment of last installment, deed is delivered to purchaser.

LIEN—A charge against property whereby the property is made security for the payment of a debt.

MORTGAGE—An instrument which pledges certain real property as security for a debt.

OPTIGN—The right to purchase or lease a property at a certain price for a certain designated period, for which right a consideration is paid.

TITLE—The sum of all the evidence which constitutes proof of ownership.

TITLE INSURANCE—An insurance policy which indemnifies the holder for any loss sustained by a defective title.

Psychologist Reviews Special Education

By TIM SCHUSTER

POUGHKEEPSIE "I think most of the things we do are gimmicks," said Dr. John B. Mordock, of Astor Home, Rhinebeck, about special classes for exceptional children.

He was addressing the annual dinner meeting of the Dutchess County Chapter, New York State Association of Teachers of the Mentally Handicapped, Inc. at the Camelot Inn Thursday night on the topic "What Is Special About Special Education?" Dr. Mordock, senior psychologist and supervisor at the Astor Home, came to the conclusion that very little is exceptional in the field of special education for the mentally retarded and the emotionally disturbed except the fact that small class sizes of "eight instead of 30" permit teachers to concentrate on individuals as much as normal classroom teachers should be able to. And he took a swipe at the supernumary tests which proliferate in the field, noting that many of them test qualities which are undefined and attempt to rectify situations which may not need rectification. And Dr. Mordock seemed strongly in favor of a system whereby the "special" children can get to know themselves and define their own boundaries in a milieu of unclassified children, and not be separated according to particular deficiencies. "Our society is great for making all kids exceptional" in one way or another, he said, referring to the "gimmicks" employed by teachers and psychologists largely to boost their own egos. He contended that "most brain damaged children are depressed because they have been short-changed somewhere along the line," and he disagreed with theories expounding limiting and not enough on understanding external stimuli for hyperactive children.

Dr. Mordock stated that no one really knows whether hyperactivity really is a block to learning, and he added that violations of normal patterns should be examined to see if the norms are appropriate. He also agreed with most of those in his audience by noting that individual training of teachers, even on an informal basis, is more important to analysis than a whole battery of psychometric tests.

On teaching priorities, Dr. Mordock said that "we find very few teachers training children in creative skills. We teach kids to read before we teach them to communicate," saying that this is backwards. And in reading he contended there is too much emphasis on discerning visual discrimination with theories expounding limiting and not enough on understanding external stimuli for hyperactive children.

And speaking of retarded children, Dr. Mordock advocated that they get to know themselves. Citing current "fads" such as encounter groups he added, "I think retarded people might need to know themselves more than normal people."

Dr. Mordock is corresponding editor of the Devereux Schools Forum and a contributing editor to "The School Psychologist." His articles have also appeared in several journals including the American Journal of Mental Deficiency, Pennsylvania Psychiatry Quarterly, American Psychologist, Exceptional Children magazine, International Journal of Group Psychotherapy and Physical Therapy.

Four Honorary Degrees At Bard Commencement

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON Honorary degrees were awarded to four distinguished visitors at the Bard College commencement today, including featured speaker Dr. Rene Dubos, Professor Emeritus at Rockefeller University and director of the Environmental Studies program at SUNY, Purchase, N.Y.

Dr. Dubos received an honorary Doctor of Science degree. Other recipients of honorary degrees were Peter Stone, Eleanore Holmes Norton, and Naom Chomsky.

Stone, who received a Doctor of Letters degree, is a graduate of Bard and is the author of many films and TV scripts as well as two current Broadway musicals, "1776" and "Two By Two." His film credits include "Charade," "Sweet Charity," "Father Goose," and "Arabesque," and he has written episodes for "The Defenders," "Asphalt Jungle," and other TV shows. "1776" brought him the Tony Award, the Drama Critics Award, and the Drama Desk Award.

Eleanore Holmes Norton, who last year was appointed chairman of the New York City Commission on Human Rights by Mayor Lindsay, received the Doctor of Laws degree. She was an ACLU lawyer from 1965-70 and became known as an impartial defender of human rights, including the right of George Wallace, the Alabama segregationist, to use Shea Stadium for a political rally during his 1968 third-party campaign for president. On Sunday she will be giving the commencement address as Vassar College.

Naom Chomsky, the author of numerous books on linguistics, philosophy, intellectual history, and contemporary issues, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

Chomsky is Ferrari P. Ward Professor of Modern Languages and Linguistics at M.I.T. In 1962 he was a Research Fellow in Cognitive Studies at the Institute for Cognitive Studies of Harvard University and his sabbatical leave in 1964-65 was spent in research at the Center. In 1966 he was appointed Linguistics Society of America Professor at the Linguistic Institute held at the University of California, Los Angeles; and in the spring of 1969 he delivered the John Locke Lectures at Oxford, and the Shearman Lectures at University College, London.

State Passes Rolison Bill, Will Aid Vehicle Owners

ALBANY Owners of motor vehicles whose licenses expire on a Saturday, Sunday or holiday would be given extra time to renew that license under a bill introduced by Senator Jay P. Rolison, Jr. (R-Dutchess and Ulster) and recently signed into law by the Governor.

The new law, now in effect, would give vehicle owners until the next business day to renew their licenses. The passage of the law will protect motorists whose registration expires on the Memorial Day or Independence Day three day holidays and those whose licenses expire at the end of July and October of this year.

In commenting on the new law, Senator Rolison stated, "With long weekend holidays now a reality, many motorists may find their licenses expiring on a weekend holiday when motor vehicle offices are closed. My bill, which is now law, will protect such motorists by giving them until the close of the next business day of the motor vehicle bureau to renew their licenses."

"Thus, for the Memorial Day long holiday, a motorist could renew his license on Tuesday, June 1."

Another of Senator Rolison's bills which has become law would include veterans of the Vietnam conflict, with veterans of other wars and armed conflicts, in the designation of the State Thruway as a Blue Star Veteran's Memorial Highway.

A bill, introduced by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Ulster) and Senator Rolison would define an "air pollution emergency" as a "situation where a high air pollution potential develops which requires immediate remedial procedures." The bill gives the Air Pollution Control Board power to take corrective action where such an air pollution emergency arises. Also awaiting the Governor's signature is a bill passed by Senator Rolison and Assemblyman Betros (R-Dutchess) to have the state convey additional land and buildings, adjacent to the Dutchess County Fire Training site, for fire, police and general county purposes.

Your Horoscope

Sunday, May 30

GENERAL TENDENCIES: As part of Memorial Day, express praise and appreciation to those of your country who have sacrificed greatly. There is a tendency to be depressed today and tonight and to find problems arising. Forgetting in self serving others is your best way to handle this.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Not a very good day for you recreation, but fine for family reunions and the like and for meditation. Associating with superficial people could lead to trouble. Keep temper under control.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Reviewing fundamental affairs and getting rid of errors in same is wise on this day away from work. Strive for greater happiness and harmony. Show that you are a patriotic person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Exerting yourself too much at recreation or not using care in motion of all kinds could get you into a lot of trouble now. Best results are obtained by speaking quietly. Histrionics could make a mess of things.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have big ideas and feel unhappy because you have limited funds with which to do things. Just be grateful for present security and plan how to increase money through practical means. Get advice from experts, also.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show that you are a humanitarian and stop trying to attract attention to yourself in social circles. Either postpone that invitation you get or act in the most discreet fashion. Express devotion to the one you love.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Although your own problems may be quite vexing, you may find that those of others are much worse, so be objective and solve them. Lend a helping hand wherever you can. Take it easy in p.m.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show good friends you are devoted and that you appreciate their loyalty and past favors. Avoid group affairs, though, since others are in an egotistical mood. Do some reading you have neglected in p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Mull over your true position where government, business and foreign affairs are concerned. Decide how you can improve things. Do nothing that will jeopardize your reputation so carefully built up. Others are in a criticizing mood now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you attend services you can be inspired on ways to improve your life so that you will become a happier and more successful person. Show new contacts that you appreciate them. Make friends of them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Depth of thought is necessary now if you want to solve problems; being superficial only adds to the confusion. Do something of a patriotic nature and this proves beneficial. Keep active.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although one who opposes you can be quiet vehement, try to see his side of the problem and then it is solved well and quickly. Think over some new deal with an associate. Act in a very circumspect fashion.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Being of service to others is past. Do what you can for those many favors from them in the past. Do what you can for those in the armed services. Show that you are an excellent citizen.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those delightful young people who pictures self as a heroic person, and will be one if you encourage to do the things that make for heroism. Give the right religious and academic training early in life. Any profession requiring a great deal of dedication is fine here, especially where country is concerned. There can easily be fame in this chart if you teach to keep sober and industrious at all times.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign of June is now ready. For your copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast, (The Daily Freeman), Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Ideal day to improve appearance so that you make fine impression on higher-ups as well as those you meet socially. Don't spend too much money for recreation. Stay within your budget.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Begin the week properly by doing those things for kin that will please them and make home life more harmonious. Make sure home appliances work properly. Entertain friends tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to obtain certain data if you want tasks to be done properly now and gain the respect of associates. Get in touch with those who can aid you. Perfect routines.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have neglected home duties lately in order to help others, so get busy now catching up on own affairs. Know what your true position is in business. Improve monetary matters. Save more money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Taking health treatments early will help you to be more precise in your duties later in the day. If you are invited to another's home, try to find out who is going to be there. Dress in good taste.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Although you enjoy dominating others, you had better finish work at hand without delay. Being more cooperative with mate is wise. Harmony is important right now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good idea to talk over your affairs with honest friends who can give the right pointers you need. Make better plans for the future. Attend the social but don't let one who is important and influential.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Doing those things that add to your reputation is wise and you get the respect of bigwigs. Buy whatever you need that will improve your work. Benefits can be greater in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have new ideas that are fine but need more study if they are to operate successfully. Correspond with those at a distance who are important to your scheme of things. Show that you are thoughtful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Stop dreaming those impossible thoughts and get into whatever is practical. Pay bills and make any collections that are due you. If you keep a promise to one you like, you get excellent response. Control your temper.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss with partners plans for considering any improvements in policy matters. Make effort to reconcile with one who opposes you. Look at both sides of the situation.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she could become a precisionist and would do well in a highly specialized field. Be sure to give tasks to perform and on the right beam: As a result this becomes a most successful chart in such professions as medicine, nursing, the law, the detective, etc. Give some musical training and some sports. Ethics early, too.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for June is now ready. For your copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast, (The Daily Freeman), Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An ideal day to get your appearance improved and make an excellent impression on others. Compliment those who have done you favors in the past. Show your gratitude.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to make your home more charming and comfortable now. Assist those at home so they can become more productive. Ideal evening to engage in worthwhile entertainment.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to do all those errands you have to do in time to keep appointments. Transportation matters should not be neglected. Keep active. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You may be so concerned about having a greater income that you are doing nothing constructive about getting it. Being practical is very important now. Repairing house is good way to increase its value.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to contact good friends and see if they can assist you. Social affairs can be very good for you now. Show that you have a charming personality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Think along social lines both where personal and business friends are concerned. Discuss personal aims with associates and see what they have to suggest. Gain their cooperation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have so much to do in business, so get an early start with the aid of associates you can trust. Study career matters well, then perform in a most efficient manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think over a new plan that will help you to gain your most cherished aims. Find new associates that are worthwhile. Stick to the kind of recreation that has satisfied in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show that you have work to do when others try to take you away from it and you get much accomplished. A little more thought to a loyal mate is necessary now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Come to a better understanding with associates in the morning. Make and keep appointments, do errands, and don't neglect transportation matters. Attend to everything in a most businesslike manner.

In the five years prior to passage in 1966 of the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act and the Highway Safety Act, highway fatalities increased at an average of 6.9 per cent yearly. Since that time, The World Almanac notes, the increase has averaged only slightly more than 2 per cent. Federal vehicle standards, imposed on cars manufactured since Jan. 1, 1968, totaled 29.

'Sesame Street' Still Tops

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Non-commercial television's "Sesame Street" is still the class of the field in children's programming, but its impact seems to be spurring the upgrading of shows for youngsters on the commercial networks.

The problem, of course, is that unless all the networks commit themselves to improving children's shows to an intelligent level, there is still sharp corporate concern about how the competition is doing in the ratings. And there has definitely not been an all-out commitment to improvement in youngsters' programs by all of the networks.

One can, however, see some hopeful signs. ABC-TV has in the works for this fall a Saturday morning series called "Curiosity Shop," which seems to be directly influenced by the impact of "Sesame Street," but is necessarily the same type of show.

Over at NBC-TV, meanwhile, some major changes apparently are in the works. First of all, the network is involved in a long-term study of youngsters and television violence. Second, some new Saturday morning shows on NBC-TV this fall appear headed in a worthwhile direction.

One of these series, "Mr. Wizard," a charming and intelligent show involving scientific experiments, is actually an old program that is being revived—and that's all to the good.

Then there is a new weekly NBC-TV hour each Saturday to be called "Take a Giant Step," and this morning show is described by the network as being "not only for children, but also by children." A participating program of the National Education Association, the largest teachers' organization in America, this series, done live, has three major goals:

Board 30, the last one of the charity game, is about as peaceful a hand as you could wish for. South opens one no-trump and, except for an occasional desperado who might try to compete with the East hand, no one will disturb him.

It will be up to West to find an opening lead and his choice will make a big difference in his choice will make a big difference in his match-point score.

If he decides to open the fourth best of his longest suit (the duce of spades), South will probably chance dummy's queen and hope for the best. The best will undoubtedly take advantage of being in dummy to lead the jack of clubs. If he won't matter if East covers or not. South will collect five quick club tricks.

West will probably discard the four of spades at his first opportunity, so that when East gets in with the ace of diamonds, he will lead a low heart. The defense will collect four heart tricks to hold South to two no-trump. If East plays a second spade South will make four or five.

If West decides to open the king of hearts on the theory

What's the best lead in general? The heart was today, but it might not be tomorrow.

Seven PC in Kingston, Five in County

Sales Tax Up a Point June 1

KINGSTON June 1, the cost of living will increase a bit in Ulster County as well as the rest of the state with the hiking of the state sales tax from three to four per cent.

The total tax in the city of Kingston will be seven per cent, the maximum allowed by state law while it will rise from four to five per cent in the rest of the county. Kingston's previous combined rate had been six per cent based on three per cent for the state, two per cent for the city and one per cent for the county. The county rate was four per cent.

The state sales tax, then only two per cent was enacted in August of 1965. At that time the combined rate of sales taxes could not exceed five per cent.

The state went up another percentage point in April 1, 1969 to three per cent and this year went to four per cent. The sales tax has proved a lucrative form of revenue for the state, topping a billion dollars in the 69-70 fiscal year (April to April) and coming in at 1.205 billion this recently completed 70-71 fiscal year. In addition, the state collected approximately $900 million for the various localities (some 67 at last count) that charge their own sales tax, such as Kingston and Ulster County.

Both the city and the county are on calendar fiscal years, the city collecting $1,192,995 in 1970 from its two per cent sales tax and the county collecting $2,799,316 last year from its one per cent.

The sales tax in Kingston took effect in March of 1968 and the county's followed three months later.

The reaction among business leaders contacted was, mild, perhaps because sales tax hikes are not new, to them.

Joseph Cornelski, of Ulster Automotive, president of the Town of Ulster Businessmen's Association, didn't think the extra percentage point would have any effect on business. "They (the public) will pay it just as they've paid it before," Cornelski volunteered.

Stanley London of London's on North Front Street, president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association, reasoned that "people will still buy the merchandise they want where they want to."

London said he hoped that the state government would have tried to cut back on spending and make wiser use of its available funds rather than increasing taxes. "Rocky might try cutting back on some of his pet projects like the Albany Mall," London argued.

The one per cent tax is expected to bring in another $300 million for the state.

Hope for Cooperation Between Nations

Mariner Races Russians to Mars

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The United States launches Mariner 9 toward Mars tonight, with two giant Russian space-ships already hurtling along the interplanetary highway toward the mysterious red planet.

No matter which craft gets there first, officials of the National Aeronautics and Space

Administration hope the two nations can agree to coordinate the three missions to receive maximum scientific benefit.

An Atlas-Centaur rocket is scheduled to start Mariner 9 on its 249-million-mile journey in a favorable launch period between 6:21 and 7:25 p.m. EDT. The payload is to coast outwards for nearly six months and fire into orbit around Mars Nov. 14. For at least three months after that, if all goes well, it will send back more than 6,500 close-up pictures and a scientific data that could help determine if primitive life such as microbes or tiny plants could exist there.

Russia's Mars 2 was the surface of the red planet, launched May 19 and Mars 3 Although Mars 2 has an 11-day head start, NASA officials believe Mariner 9 has a chance of reaching Mars first. That's because the Russian vehicle was launched on a day when Mars was 2,200 miles closer to Earth than Mariner 9's launch day. U.S. observers believe both spacecraft will attempt to land required and it thus sped away from Earth at a slightly slower rate than the American ship's intended speed.

The Americans estimate a mid-November arrival date for Mars 2 and late November for Mars 3.

The Russians have been mum about the missions of their two ships, other than to say they are to explore Mars and neighboring space.

The United States also might have had a doubleheader probe had Mariner 8 not failed because of rocket trouble on May 8. The problem was traced to a small electronic part in an autopilot of the rocket's second stage. Mariner 9's autopilot has been tested rigorously.

And the Soviets would have had a tripleheader if a Mars shot launched May 11 had not failed to fire out of Earth orbit.

The reason for the flurry of Mars activity is that the planet moves into position as a target from Earth for only a few weeks once every two years.

Seek Headquarters for 9-Province Area

Viets Drive Into Red Sanctuary

SAIGON (UPI)—A South Vietnamese task force is beating a 250-square-mile area of thick jungle in the Central Highlands which hides the Communist military headquarters for nine provinces, the operation commander disclosed today.

The 6,000-man sweep has been underway since May 4 in a region called "Doxa" (Vietnamese for "secret base") where allied troops have not set foot in eight years, Maj. Gen.

Nguyen Van Toan announced. Two other sweeps also are going on nearby. Though Toan did not spell it out, it appeared that the Army of the Republic of (South) Vietnam (ARVN) has embarked on a major push in the Central Highlands.

Toan is commander of the ARVN's 2nd Infantry Division. He said his men had killed 311 Communist soldiers in more than 100 encounters so far at a cost of 20 of their own killed and 60 wounded.

The vast area of triple-canopy jungle centers on the junction of Kon Tum, Quang Ngai and Quang Tin provinces about 290 miles northeast of Saigon. It includes South Vietnam's highest mountain, 8,324-foot Ngoc Linh.

UPI correspondent Kenneth Braddock reported that the ARVN is attempting to destroy "Military Region 5" (MR5) headquarters of the North Vietnamese.

About 4,000 to 5,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are now in the area, Toan said, but they are trying to run out now. They are avoiding contact.

Most aerial support has been provided by South Vietnamese jet fighter-bombers and helicopters; thought the U.S. American Division has provided some copters.

The ARVN for the first time in this war has set up a U.S.-style divisional support command as a test of the ability to operate their own air and supply channels, ARVN officials said.

The Doxa operation is being coordinated with an operation south of Pleiku that started in early May, and an offensive 23 miles south to push west from Dak to the Cambodian and Laotian borders, Toan said, but his men "have no orders to go into Laos."

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

This week's budget crisis at city hall reminded us of that old television show, "Maverick." The Maverick brothers, Brett and Bart, were soldiers of fortune in the old west, gamblers by trade.

Occasionally they would tap out in a poker game but they never went broke. They always had that thousand dollar bill secreted somewhere on their person which was enough for a stake for next week's show.

The situation at city hall is not unfamiliar if one can understand how city budgets are handled.

City officials, of course will point out that city budgets are only estimates, on both ends, revenues and expenditures. Work on the budget begins in September and is finalized in December for the coming year. City officials, to their credit, are pretty good guessers and most budgets come out near or on the money.

It wasn't always that easy. As former mayor Raymond W. Garraghan used to say when someone criticized former Mayor John J. Schwenk's budgets, "Sure, Schwenk had a tough time with his budgets. He never had any money."

It was said that former Mayor Schwenk used to have to figure things right down to the nuts and bolts. Literally. Ray Garraghan started that way but quickly decided that nickel-dime financing wasn't his bag. Ergo, the sales tax. One million dollars. Breathing room. The salad days for Kingston mayors began in 1968 with the first full year of sales tax receipts.

Excess money brought a whole new dimension to city financing. Debt could be reduced. Bond issues for current operations could be avoided. And tax reductions could be granted. All at the same time.

Or, as Garraghan's critics used to say, "Anyone could be a fiscal genius with the money he had." Garraghan's answer to that one is largely unprintable.

Garraghan's fiscal policy, which has been adopted in a large measure, by his successor, Frank Koenig, works like this: you figure out a basic budget with all your revenues and all your expenses in it, the latter, including personal services, retirement, social security, debt payments, supplies, all the things that you absolutely need.

Then, with what's left over, and there's been money left over for the past four fiscal years, you draw up a list of what the fiscal officers term "one shot items." This could mean new lights for Dietz stadium at $39,000 or so. It could mean sewage repair work in a specific area. In this year's budget it meant separate heating plants for the fire department and city lab.

Of course, Garraghan or Koenig could have kicked back all that excess revenue to the taxpayers directly in the form of a major tax reduction. But, they reasoned, the city would still need new lights at Dietz Stadium, new equipment or more sewage work, or whatever. And the longer you wait, the more it costs.

It all works out to the very sound fiscal policy of a pay as you go, or to quote Garraghan one more time: "You finance current operations out of current funds."

The loss of the $375,000 from the state is unfortunate. A few "one shot items" won't make it this year. But we'll have a cop on the corner, a fireman on station and the garbage will be picked up.

The mayor, like the Mavericks, had a little something tucked away.

EVERYMAN—As predicted, the Republicans have endorsed Sheriff Bill Martin, a Democrat (and also Conservative and Liberal) for reelection. Martin by now should be all things to all men and if he proves successful in snagging the Conservative and Liberal nominations again (as he did in 1968) he should stand a fairly good chance for reelection.

The GOP to be sure, justifies its endorsement of Democratic Martin on Martin's record of law enforcement. Which is probably true. All indications point to the fact.

What the politicians on the Republican side don't say, at least publicly, is that there isn't a man alive in Ulster County who can defeat Martin for reelection.

The last one to try was Tommy Mayone, the district attorney's investigator. Tommy, it seemed, had it all. A fine record, popularity, etc. etc. Tommy hung tough but lost by 18,000 votes. About that time Republicans began to look on William B. Martin as a very good sheriff.

CITY SIDE—Ted Feeney, the Republican City chairman, emphatically states, that under no conditions will the city GOP endorse Democrat Frank Koenig for reelection. Feeney still insists that the party has a candidate for mayor but it's still too early to release the name. Of course. The city convention is only a week from Tuesday. One mustn't rush into these things.

A couple of "old timers", Addison Jones and Bill Edelmuth will be reaching for the brass ring again, both announcing their intention to run for county legislator.

Edelmuth was elected last time but Jones just missed. Jones, who doesn't let his 70 some years slow him down, explained that in the fall of '69 he was busy coordinating the state bowling tournament in Kingston which involved the processing of some 40,000 applicants. "Didn't get much chance to campaign," he said.

Seale, A Free Man, Is Welcomed Home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Waving to supporters chanting "Power to the People," Black Panther Chairman Bobby G. Seale arrived home a free man Friday after nearly two years confinement in prisons from coast to coast.

Seale embraced party bodyguards at San Francisco International Airport before getting into a waiting automobile for the final trip across San Francisco Bay to his Oakland home.

About 100 persons turned out to greet the Panther leader who was released Friday afternoon from a New Haven, Connecticut, courthouse on $25,000 bond.

Seale, 34, appeared tired but happy. He smiled broadly when the crowd greeted him, but made no comments and avoided cameramen and newsmen. Murder conspiracy charges against Seale and Mrs. Ericka Huggins were dropped Tuesday in New Haven after Judge Harold Mulvey declared a mistrial. Both had been charged with the torture-murder of New York Panther Alex Rackley.

Seale, however, remained in jail until bail was set in his appeal of contempt charges leveled against him by Chicago Judge Julius Hoffman.

Seale had been bound and gagged in Hoffman's courtroom for several days during the "Chicago Eight" trial. He had been extradited to the Chicago trial from a San Francisco jail under heavy secrecy.

Peace Corps Members Expelled From Bolivia

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Nine young U.S. Peace Corps volunteers, the first of more than 100 expelled from Bolivia, have arrived in neighboring Peru and told of an organized campaign by Bolivian leftist extremists against the program.

Their hasty departure from Bolivia—some left most of their possessions behind—followed a Bolivian government decision to end the agreement under which the Peace Corps had worked in the underdeveloped nation since 1962.

Leftist charges, denied by U.S. diplomatic and Peace Corps officials in La Paz, included accusations of spying for the Central Intelligence Agency, conducting birth control and sterilization programs and spreading drug addiction among Bolivian teen-agers.

"One girl was even accused of running a brothel," said pretty 25-year-old Susan Shank of Goshen, Ind., one of the nine young volunteers who arrived in the Peruvian capital Friday.

"There was absolutely no substantiation for any of it," said George Curfmann, 24, of Denver, Colo., explaining that the charges had been published on the front pages of leftist Bolivian Newspapers.

"It's a classic example of the idea that if you tell a big enough lie, people will begin to believe it," added Curfmann, who had worked with Bolivian farmers in the isolated Alto Beni area 250 miles from La Paz.

Despite the accusations, the nine volunteers—most of whom had come to La Paz only Thursday from isolated posts hundreds of miles away—showed little bitterness over their expulsion.

"What's the use of being bitter," said Eric Cunningham, 24, of Carrollton, Ill.

"The campaign against us was very well planned," said Cunningham, "but it ended in an anti-climax when President Torres decided to kick us out last week."

Although left wing extremists have sought the Peace Corps ouster for years, the current campaign began in early May and demands for government expulsion of the volunteers was to have been the central theme of an "anti-imperialist week" which began last Monday.

"The people responsible for our expulsion had all the power," Curfmann said. "The little people at the bottom, who were for us, had absolutely no political power."

"They could come to us as friends and say 'we're sorry to see you go,' but there wasn't much they could do about it," he added.

Last Reunion on a Sidewheel Steamer

Consider this:

"Table d'hôte breakfast at seventy-five cents, until 9 a.m., also table d'hôte dinner at one dollar each, between the hours of 11 a.m. and 3 p.m."

And mull upon this:

"This trip allows time for a picnic at Kingston Point Park, a most charming day resort or a trolley ride through the beautiful and historic city of Kingston, where the first Constitution of the State of New York was adopted. There one can see quaint old stone houses built prior to the Revolution, and other objects of interest. Round trip ticket, $1."

And, finally, savor the poetry in this:

"It is particularly fitting that the waters of the Hudson should be the home of the magnificent group of steamers which compose the fleet of the Hudson River Day Line. Through these large elegantly appointed boats, the most beautiful stream on this continent is provided with passenger-carrying vehicles which are without rivals among inland water vessels."

All three quotations are from the Hudson River Day Line Souvenir Magazine of 1912. The Day Line, of course, is not what it once was when presidents and kings rode its ships to see the beauty of the Hudson's mountain shoreline. But the end of the line has not yet come for its world famous cruises—and one event, at least, recalls the history of that era when "the peaks and vales of the legendary Catskill Mountains heights welcomed a vast army of vacation seekers each summer, who found the crags and valleys ideal for healthful recreation."

There exists among us today—despite superhighways leading to bridges that are marvels of engineering—the Hudson River Day Line Alumni Association. Every year its members hold an annual reunion and, this year, the date for that gathering is Saturday, June 26.

Which means these nostalgia seekers want all members, along with families and friends to join a happy get-together and salute to the past aboard the ALEXANDER HAMILTON. If you'd like to cruise along, plan to board either at the foot of West 41st Street in New York at 10 a.m., or at Bear Mountain at 12:30 p.m. on June 26.

While the event will be gala, it will be marked with a touch of sadness. All indications point

Dayline Rally

And still another tribute to the Alexander Hamilton—and all side-wheelers of the past century—comes up on the calendar today.

Poughkeepsie's Dayline Action Committee is sponsoring a rally to salute a century of service to the Hudson Valley area via steamer transportation. Slated today, Saturday, May 29, beginning at 1 p.m. at the city's Riverfront Park (site of the old Dayline dock), the afternoon's activities will include commemorative speeches by historian Donald C. Ringwald and others, a mock docking, and a boat display of area boat clubs on the river.

On board the Alexander Hamilton today will be the president of the Dayline, and Poughkeepsie area residents hope to show by their rally that the city still cherishes the Dayline, has been saddened since 1962 that it no longer stops there because few cared enough to keep the dock maintained, and would welcome the return of the Hamilton on stopovers at Poughkeepsie.

to the fact that this will be the last such gathering on a side-wheel steamboat plying the Hudson. The Day Line plans to replace the "Alexander Hamilton" in 1972 with a new diesel vessel . . . stilling the sound of beating paddles on the river.

For many, then, the reunion offers a last chance to pay their respects to a ship they think of as a "grand old girl." Aboard that day will be all "the tried and true" who have never missed a previous reunion, along with the "Day Line Girls," the daughters of the legendary Abraham Hornor and Purser E. J. Bailey, of earlier Hudson River days.

The cruise will also offer the opportunity to order the Day Line Alumni's pictorial booklet, now being printed for distribution soon. Entitled DAY LINE MEMORIES, it's crammed with more than 145 illustrations of personnel and views of steamers of yore. A delightful and unique publication, it should become a collector's item.

So, be aboard Saturday, June 26, to join in a happy frolic and a lingering goodbye to the "Alexander Hamilton" with Day Line alumni from all over New York and New Jersey.

More Merie Songes In Medieval Garb

Currently marking its 52nd year, the Woodstock Artists Association shows no sign of aging. Indeed, it's enjoying a new infusion of purpose and an all-time high in activity thanks to a partial funding by the New York State Council on the Arts.

Never before has there been such a burgeoning and far-ranging program at WAA. There's an event of one kind or another going on constantly: art exhibits by the standing membership and young newcomers; graphic and film workshops, classes in many categories from exercise and sketching to Japanese flower arrangement, poetry readings, a music concert series.

The latter is proving a major attraction, and with the long holiday weekend now in swing, many will want to take advantage of the next concert in the Spring Music Series. It'll be a special treat for area audiences when the Madrigal Singers perform tonight, Saturday, May 29 in a glittering Memorial Day weekend presentation.

This Woodstock based group has been receiving well deserved praise from the many audiences fortunate enough to hear them in the past three years. Performing ardously researched Elizabethan and Baroque music, the Singers have appeared throughout the Mid-Hudson Valley, including the famed Maverick Concert Hall in Woodstock and various fetes in Saugerties, High Falls, West Park and elsewhere.

Attired in colorful medieval garb, the Madrigal Singers offer a fresh and delicate sound drawn from a lengthy and ancient repertoire.

Tickets for tonight's concert, starting at 8 p.m., will be available at the door; are priced at $2 each.

Conducted by Beatrice Bright, the Singers can be counted on to provide excellent entertainment. They're among the best ensembles on the scene today; handle a difficult repertoire calling for the singing of some six different parts up and over each other with polished professionalism.

YOUTHFUL SPECTATORS at New Windsor Cantonment always respond to the boom of cannon and the crack of musketry. Watching intently as volunteer team attired in buckskin and regulation Continental Army uniform load up for a dry shooting demonstration, they await the order of READY... AIM...

... F-I-R-E! The vivid re-creation of old-time musket action is hard on the eardrums but effective in helping bring history to life. By the time the smoke has cleared — and the old firearms produce plenty of that — visitors are ready to move into the armourer's hut or blacksmith shop with their movie cameras.

Lively Approach to Living History

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

In this final article of a two-part series, TEMPO returns to the New Windsor Cantonment, near Newburgh, where in the winter of 1782-83, dissident officers placed the goals of the Revolutionary War in jeopardy.

Then, in the spring of 1783, General George Washington spoke to the troops, and "the tide of patriotism rolled again in its wonted course."

In many ways, it was Washington's "finest victory" — for he won it not by defeating the British, but in a speech appealing to the officers' patriotism, to their honor and to the rights of humanity.

In his concluding words, he said:

"You will, by the dignity of your Conduct, afford occasion for Posterity to say, when speaking of the glorious example you have exhibited to Mankind, 'had this day been wanting, the World had never seen the last stage of perfection... to which human nature is capable of attaining'."

Revolt Aborted

Any revolt or rebellion by the weary, unpaid officers was staved off by Washington's moving, personal appeal. His words dispelled all doubts and "the tide of patriotism rolled again."

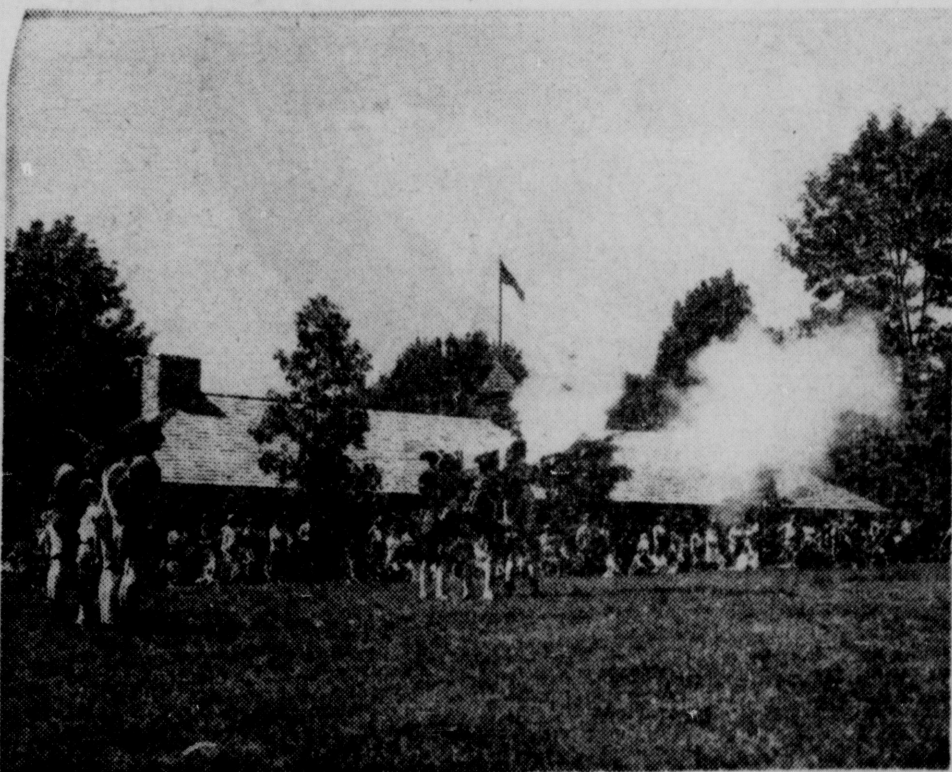

The Posterity Washington spoke of can return to the events of that era by visiting the cantonment area — where the confrontation is re-enacted time and again during the spring, summer and early fall season.

With the Bicentennial of the founding of this country coming up in just four short years, the New Windsor Cantonment will be an important focus of attention. Here was the last great encampment of General Washington's Northern Continental Army and here is celebrated a reenactment of the "Announcement of Peace" to the troops at the Cantonment, a pageant as colorful as his confrontation with dissident officers.

THE FIRING OF A CANNON on the parade ground never fails to draw screams of delight from the crowds streaming to the historic Cantonment. Special events this season will include Baron Von Steuben Day, Annual Firelock Matches, Grand Review of Ancient Martial Musick, and 18th Century Crafts Day.

Proud of Heritage; Expert Performers

Every act in this upcoming show is done with supreme confidence and total expertise by performers proud of their native heritage and entertainment abilities.

The show is "Around the World in 90 Minutes;" the performers are all graduate students from many foreign countries and the U.S. now studying in and around New York City; and the date is June 3 at 7:30 p.m. at Kingston's J. Watson Bailey School.

"World" has been hailed globally as highly professional and vastly enjoyable entertainment. A fast moving and irresistible potpourri of song and dance, it runs the gamut from operatic arias to gay folk songs, from graceful ballet to rhythmic modern dance, from piano solos to colorful ethnic dances.

Rare Cultural Event

All who have seen each new edition in the past have praised it as a rare and outstanding cultural event. In short, it's an evening to be long remembered, boasting both exhilarating and relaxing numbers — a virtual tour of the world in the songs and dances of many countries.

Patron tickets for reserve seating for the June 3 show are now available at Kingston's YWCA. General admission seats are on sale in Kingston at Abram's Music Store, Book Center, the local YWCA, Kingston Music Center, and Sears, Roebuck and Company. Seats may also be purchased at Yarn Barn, New Paltz; Catskill Book Shop, Woodstock; and in Saugerties at Bee-Ver House and Saugerties Lumber Company.

For an evening of fun and the knowledge that all proceeds will benefit the educational programs of the Mental Health Association and the play group of the YWCA, reserve or purchase your tickets this week.

PARAMJIT CHAWLA, of India, is a featured performer in the exciting "Around the World" show culled from the four corners of the globe, and being offered to entertainment lovers by the YWCA and Ulster County Mental Health Association. Tickets are now available throughout Ulster County.

'Teacher as Artist' Theme for Artcraft

Taking as its theme, "The Teacher As Artist," Kingston's Artcraft Gallery on Broadway will feature the works of Arthur Pinkham in its latest exhibit, slated to run from June 2-25.

Pinkham is currently a student teacher of Art at Port Ewen Elementary School. A graduate of Kingston High and Ulster County Community College, the young artist will receive his B.S. degree from State University College, New Paltz at the upcoming commencement ceremonies.

His one-man show at Artcraft will feature two-dimensional paintings and photographs, as well as three-dimensional works in stone, wood, metal and plaster. While Pinkham is attracted to three-dimensional pieces, his major interest in the art field is painting, with sculpture taking a secondary seat in his work.

Represent a Transition

The recent paintings to be shown at Artcraft represent a transition in his ideas and styles, stemming from a constant search for new ways in which to express himself. His paintings, he says, are essentially product of today's society, while combining abstract expressionism and hard-edge styles done in a personal and individualistic manner.

Pinkham also says the ideas for his canvases come to him at random moments through "unconscious thinking;" are developed and redefined to fit his own concepts and techniques. The result, for viewers, emerges in paintings of a special vibrancy, exploring both the infinite and the reality.

The Pinkham exhibit will be open to the public daily, except Sunday, at the Artcraft Gallery throughout most of June. So, stop in for a unique, creative and memorable experience.

HARD-EDGE PAINTING by artist-teacher Arthur Pinkham is one of many such works to be featured in his one-man show at Kingston's Artcraft Gallery throughout the month of June.

A Reminder of Creativity in a Retirement

The ideals, viewpoints and his talents to community service as well as to art. creative insights of Larry Argiro — always vividly expressed — have contributed much to the cultural scene in Ulster County for more than two decades.

Argiro emerged from a career as an art teacher to become one of the truly fine producing artists in the U.S. today, as well as one of the leaders in art education.

As one of the best known, most popular contemporary artists on the scene today, he has an almost universal appeal, probably due in great measure to his highly developed and poetic imagination, his inspired use of color, and his concern with the fundamental human themes. His distinctly personal style is manifested in various media, and he has contributed

Plans to Retire.

Now, the announcement that Larry Argiro, Professor of Art and Art Education at State University College, New Paltz, will retire from teaching at the end of the current school year, serves as a reminder of what he has added in beauty, inspiration and dedication to our area.

Professor Argiro came to New Paltz in July 1950 as visiting professor during the summer session; so impressed students and faculty, he was invited to remain as a regular staff member at session's end.

Previously, he had taught art at various central and high schools, as well as museums; had served with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers as a 2nd Lieutenant. Within a year after his arrival at Paltz, he prepared the original proposal for an art education program at the college; secured approval to put it into effect from state agencies. What then began as a program for the preparation of art teachers with only four students in the old "main building" on campus, eventually developed into one of the largest art programs in the world with more than 700 students working in a fine arts building of their own.

And, for 21 years here, Argiro has contributed much to college and community affairs. Actively serving the college on such committees as those responsible for curriculum, welfare, promotion and tenure, admissions, honors, and commencement, he has also represented the Middle States Association on its accrediting teams. Retained by the State Education Department as a special art consultant on curriculum matters, he was also commissioned to author two texts for state schools, "Creative Crafts" and "Creative Mechanical Drawing."

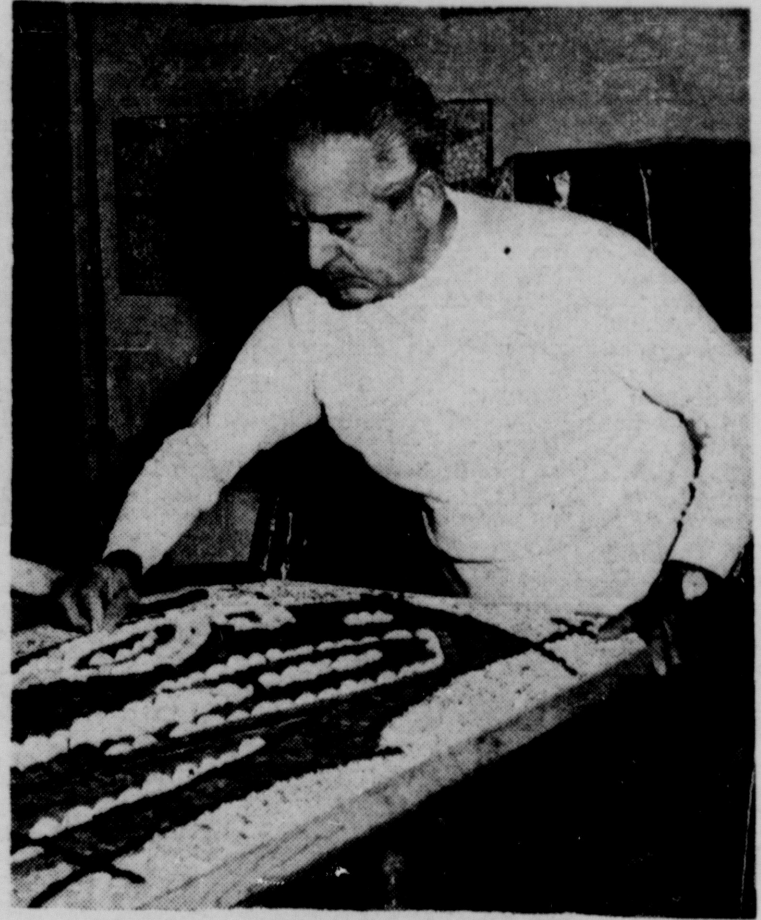

Turned to Editing

Argiro added to Ulster's cultural laurels by winning the presidency of the N.Y. State Art Teachers Association and bringing its annual convention to the Paltz campus. He has also been the editor of the Association's Art Bulletin.

During his early years at Paltz, he began an intensive study of Greek, Roman, Byzantine and modern mosaics, following his research with studio experimentation and developing new techniques with many materials. This work brought him acclaim in national art magazines, and a career as lecturer-demonstrator at national art educator meetings and on television. Following a later study-trip to Italy, he authored a book on the art of mosaics, "Mosaic Art Today." Praised in the U.S. and abroad, the tome has since been reprinted in revised form.

His innovative approach to the design of mosaics brought him commissions that will contribute to the lasting beauty of the area for years to come. His large mosaic murals add an artistic quality to buildings throughout the country and state; include his "Lux et Veritas" at Hudson Falls High School, "Coq D'Or" at Reno's Nugget Casino, "The Three Pines" at Canastota High School; "Two Religious Panels" at Syracuse's Our Lady of Pompei Church, "Emergence II" at the new Sojourner Truth Library on the Paltz campus; "Sacramental Altar" at Paltz's St. Joseph Church; "The Seal" at Hopewell's Presbyterian Church, and others, including a stunning mosaic at Kingston's Temple Emanuel.

As an artist, Professor Argiro

has also been honored with many one-man exhibitions of his work and is represented in many private collections.

Planning for Growth

A sensitive artist, he has also been sensitive to the problems of his community. Convinced of the inevitable growth of the Town of New Paltz and a firm proponent of planning and zoning, he has served as chairman of the Paltz Planning Board; worked to initiate a Master Plan there financed by a federal grant of more than $38,000. Credited with helping to alert his community to the dangers of careless misuse of land, he was instrumental in seeing new subdivision regulations put into effect and a Town Park Commission created.

His work in town planning led to his election as a director of the N.Y. State Planning Association, following his earlier appointment as a member of the Ulster County Planning Board.

His more than passing interest in religious art is reflected in the fact that he is a charter member of the Student Christian Center.

Born abroad, Larry Argiro came to America at an early age; settled in Syracuse where he received BFA and MS degrees from Syracuse University College of Fine Arts.

It was a fortunate day indeed for Ulster County when he elected to relocate here. His retirement from teaching will be a loss to the area, but TEMPO and all other Argiro admirers can take consolation in the fact that he plans to continue his work as a professional mosaic designer and lecturer on art subjects.

Beye and Richards Team for Reading

Two of the area's most talented writers will team up for a poetry-reading concert this weekend. The event will be one in a trio of cultural events slated at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery over the current holiday weekend; will see Holly Beye and Tad Richards taking over the stage.

The poetry-reading is scheduled for Sunday, May 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the art colony gallery. Miss Beye, a prolific playwright, and Richards, editor of Spotlite, recently revived Mid-Hudson monthly magazine, have been teamed on previous occasions, including an appearance at New York City's experimental Cubiculo Theatre.

Playwright Beye is currently on sabbatical leave as a librarian at Onteora Central Schools; is a long-time resident of Woodstock who has had several plays performed in New York, San Francisco and Woodstock. Her most recent production, a series of three plays entitled "Late for Oblivion," was presented in Woodstock last month by the local Performing Arts group.

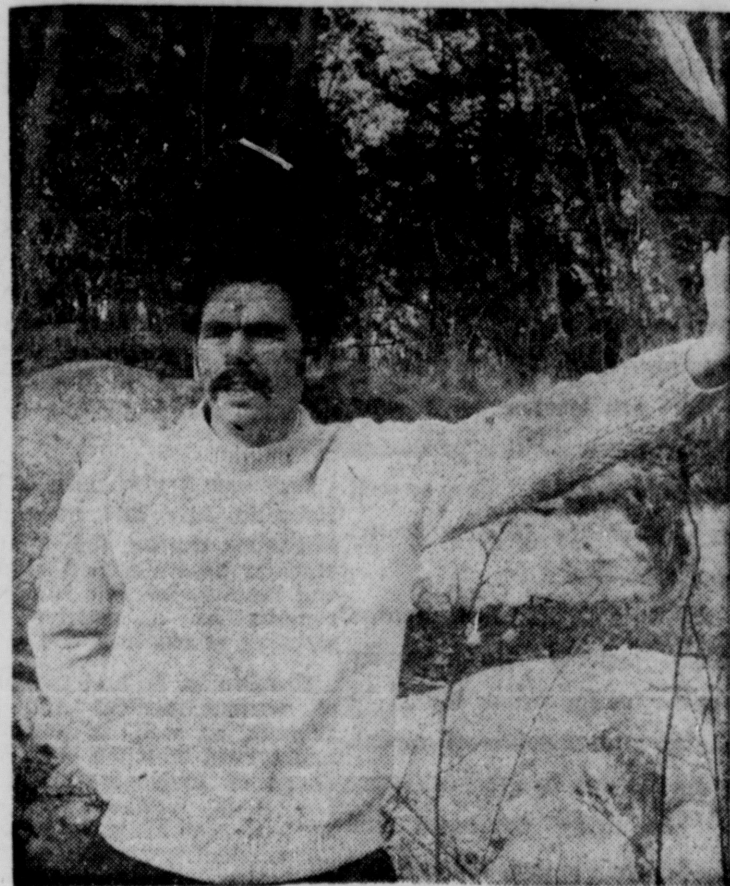

She also has four books of poetry and four full-length plays to her credit; has spearheaded a theatrical group called The Heads which used political and social satire as its material.

Richards has an established reputation as a poet; has had his work published in Poetry Magazine and the North American Review. He collaborated on the English subtitles for the acclaimed political film, "Z," and has published a novel under the name of William Shears. A regular contributor to Realist Magazine, he edited the newspaper "Encounter" out of New Paltz prior to joining Spotlite.

Those who attend the poetry reading Sunday night will also have the opportunity of viewing the new exhibit at the gallery—the All-Membership Show slated to open with a party today, Saturday, May 29, from 4-6 p.m. and running through June 16.

Elvis Should Last So Long

Introducing Sesame's Singer, Bob McGrath

With almost 12 million fans watching him on TV and clamoring for his records, Bob McGrath is easily one of the most popular singers of our time. But unless you're between the ages of three and five, you may never have heard of him.

"There are about 12 million children between the ages of three and five," McGrath says, "and an awful lot of them watch Sesame Street. But we have some older viewers, too. As a matter of fact, I got a letter from a girl of six just the other day."

On Sesame Street, Bob is known as just plain Bob. Back in the days when he used to sing with Mitch Miller on the Sing Along TV show, he was known as Bob McGrath. Either way he's a tall tenor with a quick grin and the kind of voice that was made to sing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Big In Japan

Bob, who does less performing than he'd like on Sesame Street, (he spends a lot of time on camera, but he isn't singing most of the time), has five children of his own, lives in New Jersey and, besides being the super-star of the sub-six set, is also one of the most popular performers in Japan, where he records for Nippon Columbia.

"Sing Along With Mitch was a popular show in Japan," says Bob, "and we were all invited to go over there in 1965. A friend of my wife's taught me a couple of Japanese songs and I was very well received. After that they kept asking me to come back to play club dates and do concerts and I really became something of a star over there, which is funny because I was having a hard time even getting a booking in the United States."

In addition to being one of Japan's leading personalities, Bob plays the convention circuit, providing entertainment at one-nighters at the conclusion of national conventions for major corporations.

But his real love is Sesame Street.

"I have learned more about life from the Muppets," he claims, "than from any human being I've ever met."

Instant Conversations

Wherever Bob goes he meets children who have seen him so often that they start instant conversations with him.

"At the Memphis airport," he remembers, "I was killing two hours between planes when I ran into a class of about 75 kids who were being taken on a tour. They were all neatly lined up and very orderly, until they saw me. I was mobbed and I loved it."

Bob thinks he may be building the kind of base that could make him a national institution in this country for a long time to come.

"If the kids who like me at four stick with me until they're 16 years of steady employment. Even Elvis may not last that long."

The Advocates: Suburbs & Poor

Many urban planners agree the solution to problems of the urban poor lies in the suburbs. But most suburbs have zoning practices which, in effect, exclude the poor of the cities. THE ADVOCATES look at one possible solution when they debate "Should the federal government compel suburbs to accept low-income housing?" Tuesday, June 1 at 9 p.m. on Channel 17.

The proposal to allow the federal government to step in would nullify local restrictions and pave the way for low-income housing in the suburbs.

Supporting the case for federal action with Advocate Howard Miller will be Paul Davidoff, co-creator of the Suburban Action Institute, White Plains, N.Y.; Herbert Franklin, staff counsel of the National Urban Coalition; and Sumner Wolsky, an elected member of the town meeting of the upper-middle-income community of Lexington, Mass., a suburb of Boston.

Leading the opposition will be guest Advocate J. Daniel Mahoney, co-founder and state chairman of the New York Conservative Party.

Opponents argue that the tradition of home rule in the suburbs ought to be preserved, and they question whether low-income housing there is desirable. They say the influx of urban poor would place a disproportionately higher tax burden on other homeowners.

LIVING LEGEND-SEX GODDESS Rita Hayworth isn't known for her ability to be funny, but she proved she is on The Carol Burnett Show. Here's Carol and Rita in a charwoman skit for which they teamed when the sexy actress of "Gilda" fame made her first TV appearance on Carol's show. The segment was repeated recently.

"JANE EYRE," the Delbert Mann film that premiered in late March on NBC-TV, won Best Film, Best Actor and Best Actress Awards in a nationwide balloting of some 1,000 TV editors and critics (including TEMPO). Best Actor honors went to George C. Scott (he has already copped an Oscar for "Patton" and an Emmy for "The Price") for his portrayal of Edward Rochester in the movie adapted from the classic Bronte novel. British actress Susannah York, shown here in scene from "Jane Eyre" with Scott, was voted Best Actress for her portrayal of the film's title role. Balloting was restricted to 48 feature films first shown on or made exclusively for TV, and nearly all daily newspapers in the U.S. participated.

D&H Dinner a Dilly!

Few things are more magical than the New Paltz grounds of Lake Mohonk Mountain House in lilac time. Spectacular vistas of the scenic mountains and vast panoramas of the countryside are commonplace at Mohonk, too.

And where else today can one find such rugged woodlands and great cliffs, such country-style American food, such architectural charm of 19th-century origin, miles upon miles of horseback and carriage roads?

In this perfect blend of nature and history, the Delaware and Hudson Canal Historical Society will offer up its festive annual dinner. The date is Saturday, June 19 and the price to all comers will be $8 each for Society members and $10 for non-members, including gratuities and tax.

There's Lots More

But there's more than just dinner to be had for your money. All the resort facilities of this fabulous "house," with its more than 300 rooms, 259 balconies, 151 fireplaces, and acres of flower gardens will be available for the price of the dinner alone. Resort activities include swimming, golf and tennis, hiking, horse and carriage riding, rock climbing, and overall rambling over the gracious grounds and antiques furnished buildings.

It'll be hard to resist such an event, topped by a dinner that's sure to be a smashing success. A "Dutch Treat" cocktail hour, from 6:30-7:30 p.m. will precede the sumptuous buffet dinner, to be served at 7:30.

You're invited to this topflight social affair of the early summer season, so get your reservations in now to Mrs. Wilfred G. Springer, Chairman of the Dinner Committee, Rest Place Farm, High Falls, N. Y. 12440.

The dinner will also be the occasion for a membership drive, and many will want to join the D & H Canal Society once they see how much fun they have and learn more about their future projects to save and restore one of the most intriguing of former area transportation arteries.

We wouldn't think of missing it. Food fit for a king and a chance to read the diary of a long-gone family's trip via the D & H to Mohonk, planned as one of the historical exhibits.

Lively Approach

Revolution after another, the Bridge of the American Revolution re-creates the atmosphere of the past in a living history approach.

They've Reactivated

The Brigade itself is a national organization composed of local groups that have reactivated and adopted the identity, uniforms, and weapons of actual units that served on both sides in the American Revolution.

Most visitors to the Cantonment, often compared to Virginia's Colonial Williamsburg, begin by visiting the reconstructed Publick Building, used as a meetinghouse and auditorium. Here Washington's address to the dissidents is recounted, and the original Purple Heart (awarded in this very building) is displayed.

Then it's off to the Museum Building for historical exhibits in abundance, and to the Temple Building to see the "Badge of Military Merit," this country's first military award.

The Officer's Hut, the only building to survive of the Cantonment's original 700, is always a highlight. Movies, too, are shown, usually in the Temple Building — and boasting such titles as "The Gunsmith of Williamsburg" and "Washington's Finest Victory."

Special Events

And always there are special events (The School of the Revolutionary Soldier, Baron Von Steuben Day, 18th Century Crafts Day), and lectures (British Army Uniforms and Equipment, Military Drum Signals).

But all else is forgotten when the drum begins to roll on the parade ground outside the Publick Building. That's when the show of shows begins: when young and old gather 'round to hear the sounds of fifes and drums, view the marching of Revolutionary Regiments, and thrill to the flash of flames from old muskets and cannons.

That's when a team of men, in Revolutionary Army uniforms and carrying muskets — put on a parading and dry shooting demonstration that always enthralles as they vividly recreate the life of a Continental Army soldier.

Few other attractions succeed so well in involving people in the history of the U.S. There are, of course, the usual static museum exhibits of military mannequins, blacksmith shops and other displays. But it is the live firing demonstration on the range and the firing of a cannon on the parade ground that brings back the ghosts of Washington and his men.

Indeed, the New Windsor Cantonment at Vails gate near Newburgh, makes history come alive in all its completeness, color and authority. Contemporary attraction though it may be, it reduces history to its human dimensions; reminds us that our heritage was not some abstract principle at work — but men of flesh and blood who endured, suffered and died for principles they valued more than life.

Open Five Days

An entrancing place to visit, where history is vividly told in a lively and exciting manner. That's the New Windsor Cantonment, open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Mondays and Tuesdays. There's no parking or admission charge, so take along a picnic lunch (or sup at the snack bar) and drive on down with the family.

Perhaps you'd like to go this very weekend, when the public's invited to attend a meaningful Memorial Day Ceremony, beginning at 11:30 a.m. on Monday, May 31, with a Traditional Troop Ceremony and Parade, and followed at 1 p.m. by military drill and firing and special talks.

But, if you miss the Memorial Day Ceremonies, plan on going any other weekend during the summer. There's always a special event on tap, whether it's Annual Firelock Matches, the Grand Review of Ancient Martial Musick, or General Henry Knox Day.

RUMPLE-FACED WALTER MATTHAU is a bachelor playboy who gets romantically involved with an untidy heiress in "A New Leaf," the year's bouncy movie surprise now settled in at Kingston's Mayfair for a two week engagement.

MOVIES

A New Leaf

As a long-time admirer of the creative imagination of Elaine May—and a shorter term but avid fan of Walter Matthau, forget at the outset any criticism from this writer on any movie in which the two are teamed. And teamed they are—this terrific twosome—in "A New Leaf," the film now on screen at Kingston's Mayfair.

Miss May wrote it, directed it, and co-stars in it—and that's comedy enough for us. It may not be mod, pop humor—but it's fun...with a nostalgic tinge of old-time Hollywood drawing room satire. There's the inimitable Matthau as a wastrel playboy who zips through his fortune and goes looking for a heiress he can marry—and do in, if necessary—in order to hold on to his sports car, polo pony, posh club membership, and prolonged lunch hours.

Enter Elaine May as a very rich, bookish, accident-prone, fast approaching old maid heiress. She's the answer to his money woes, and seemingly inept enough to be murdered off when the occasion warrants. In time, however, she breaks down the fortune hunter's defenses and he settles in to love and marriage with the contentment of a tamed tiger.

The dialogue is good for a laugh a minute, Matthau is superb, May is as zany as she ever was in the days when she teamed with Mike Nichols, and Jack Weston as an unscrupulous attorney and James Coco as Matthau's guardian are total delights. All in all, a funny, bouncy movie that no one could or should fault.

The Barefoot Executive

One of those rare movies parents look forward to in anticipation — good, clean fare for kids. "Barefoot" is Walt Disney's latest; stars Kurt Russell, Joe Flynn, Wally Cox, Heather North and Raffles in the story of a TV executive who discovers a chimp with a flair for picking top-rated shows.

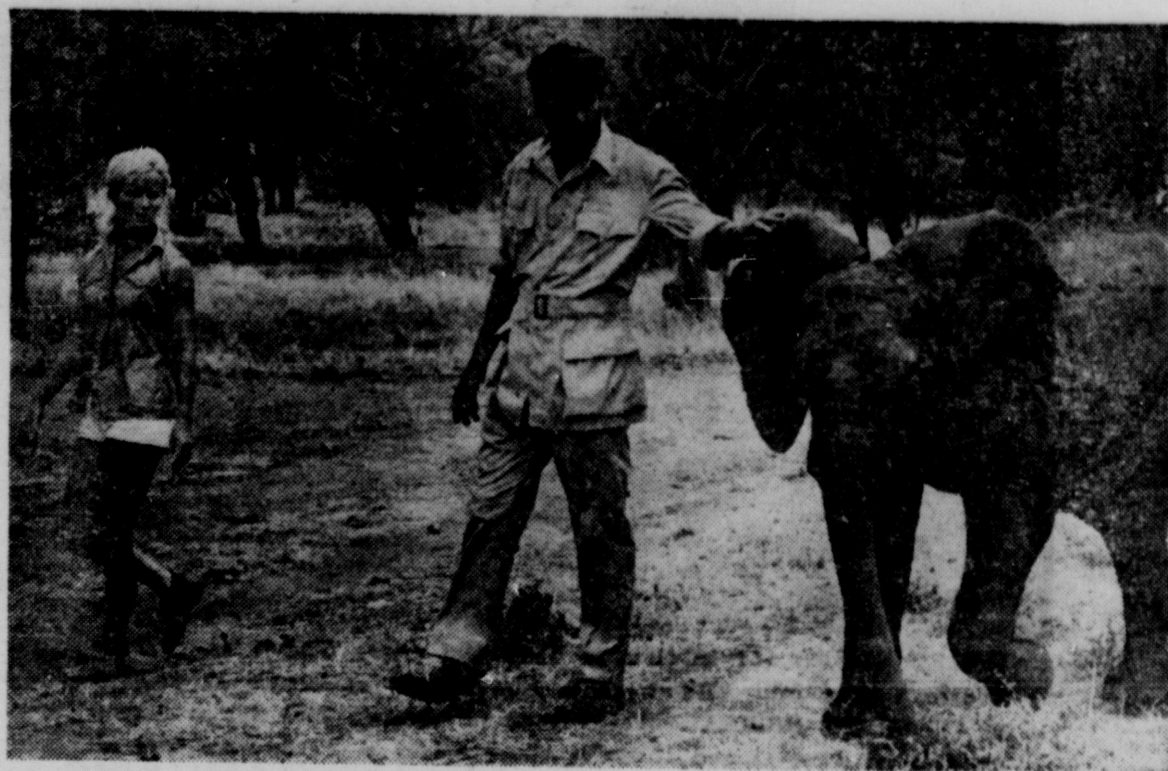

Now playing at Kingston's Community as well as the Hyde Park Drive-In, it's a joyous spoof on the TV industry; follows the adventures of a network page (young Russell) as he rises in the ranks to Programming Director and Vice President with the help of Raffles, the prime-time chimp who makes a monkey out of everyone involved.

On the double bill at the Community is another Disney hit, last summer's "THE EOATNIKS"—back for a rerun. Utter chaos takes over the screen in Newport Beach—the busiest small boat harbor in the world—as an accident prone young ensign (Robert Morse) gets involved with three jewel thieves (Phil Silvers, Norman Fell and Mickey Shaughnessy).

Bed and Board

From France's celebrated Francois Truffaut comes this warm and witty sequel to his previous "Stolen Kisses." Now playing for a first run in the area at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema, it features Jean-Pierre Leaud and Claude Jade continuing their roles in this series; brings the hero of "400 Blows" to marriage and parenthood.

"Bed and Board" is a glowing movie, well deserving of the critical acclaim it has received. It again offers Antoine and Christine (the hero and heroine many have followed through other Truffaut movies), well past adolescence and ready for conjugal love. The tale hangs on the funny, futile years of their marriage, and it's an amusing story.

VIRGINIA McKENNA and Bill Travers delight movie-goers on their incredible adventure that takes audiences through Africa, with all its wonders and its wild life. In scene from "An Elephant Called Slowly," now playing on the double bill at Hyde Park Drive-In, they amble along with their adopted 900-lb. baby elephant.

Not exactly total comedy and somewhat removed from domestic drama, it mixes the affection and problems of marriage in an airy blend. To the bedtime games of a husband and wife and the arrival of their first child, it adds a succession of lost jobs, marital defection, and dissatisfactions.

As an exploration of the first years of marriage and parenthood, "Bed and Board" is a fine achievement and an autobiography of superlative excellence. It has its romantic moments but, with an eye to reality, it also has weird neighbors, odd jobs, spats and low-blow remarks, outmoded love rituals, and the temper and tears that accompany domestic crisis. Most of all, it is a realistic look at the fundamental relationships between young men and women intent on settling in to togetherness.

Patton

Oh, my God, it's George C. Scott! And he's giving one of (Continued on Page 32)

ELLIOTT GOULD stars on two area movie screens. He's the Army surgeon in "MASH," Korean War film at Kingston's Sunset Drive-In and Red Hook's Lyceum.

JACK NICHOLSON was nominated for a "Best Actor of the Year" award for his role as the oil rigger in "FIVE EASY PIECES." The highly acclaimed film is back for a rerun currently at both New Paltz Cinema, and Rosendale Theatre.

GERRY BURKE (L) as Chinese Sam, and Larry Shufelt as "Prince Charlie," administer chloroform to Kim Herald as Flossie in revival of "RAGS TO RICHES," old-fashioned melodrama back for a return engagement June 11 and 12 under the auspices of Performing Arts of Woodstock. (Gary Muller photo)

A Return Engagement Of 'Rags to Riches'

The turn of the century melodrama, RAGS TO RICHES, by Charles Taylor, presented by Performing Arts of Woodstock last January, was warmly and enthusiastically received by Woodstockers, and theater lovers as far away as Wappingers Falls and Westchester, who braved the cold and snow to come hiss the villain, and cry out warnings and advice to the heroine.

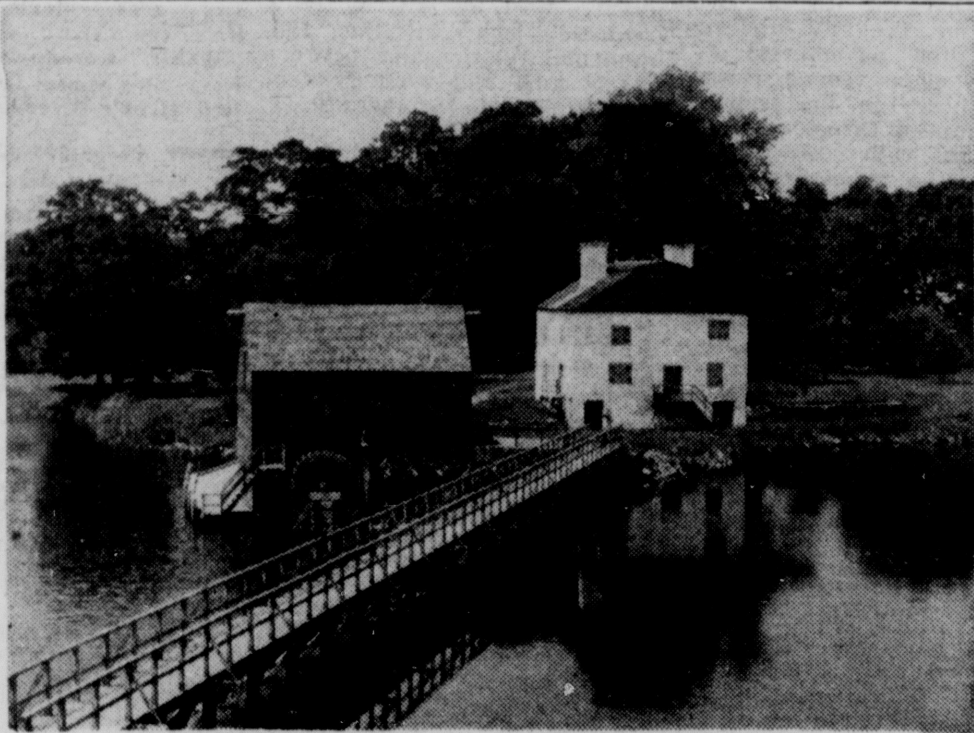

By popular demand of those who weren't so brave last winter, and those who wish to see it again, RAGS TO RICHES, will play a return engagement next month. Performances will Friday and Saturday, June 11 and 12 at 8 p. m. and a Saturday matinee, June 12, at 2:30 p. m.

RAGS TO RICHES is a play that appeals to all ages. For the very young it is theater-going without the admonishments of "be quiet," "sit still." For the young adult it's a chance to experience classic Victorian melodrama. And for the older audiences, quoting from a review by Tobie Geertsema, in The Daily Freeman, "It revives a host of memories, ranging from the adventures of old time comic strip heroes, to songs of the old opera and vaudeville houses and the corner saloons, to situations detailing the vices and virtues of yesterday's heroes."

Productions are slated in the Town Hall, next door to the Fire House, on Tinker Street in Woodstock. Tickets will be available at the door. Reservations may be made by calling OR 9-2514. Prices for the evening performances are $2.50, students $1.50, children $1. For the Saturday matinee: $2, $1, $0.50.

IN A PICTURE SETTING, this historic restoration is the subject of an award-winning film.

'Sleepy Hollow' Wins Film Award

Sleepy Hollow Restorations of Tarrytown has received a first place film award at the U.S. Industrial Film Festival in Chicago.

The 16mm color film entitled "Lords of the Manor . . . The Story of Philipsburg" earned Sleepy Hollow its "Gold Camera Award" in the festival's history category.

It is a 14-minute documentary film which traces the early years, slow demise and eventual restoration of Philipsburg Manor to its appearance of the early 1700s. Then it was an important gristmill-trading center complex in the lower Hudson River valley. Philipsburg is in North Tarrytown, two miles north of the Tappan Zee Bridge.

The film was produced to meet two objectives. It was to inform the public of Philipsburg's 300-year history and also serve as an educational aid.

Philipsburg Manor with its operating gristmill, 200-foot-long oak-timbered dam and late 1600s stone Manor House was the principal location for the film.

All film roles were played by staff members of Sleepy Hollow. They included Philipsburg's resident miller and farmer who performed their daily routines in period attire.

In addition to being shown at Philipsburg, the film is being distributed by Modern Talking Pictures of New York City to community groups and television stations. Cities where stations have shown the film include New York City, Philadelphia, Binghamton, Wilmington, Del., and Toronto and Pembroke in Canada.

locally at the Sunset Drive-In and Red Hook Lyceum.

On the double bill at the Sunset and Lyceum is "MASH," with uproarious performances by Elliott Gould and Donald Sutherland as hip Army surgeons in a field hospital during the Korean War. All in all, a great two-parter at the Sunset—and movie buffs will have a field day!

'Mannix' Moves

"Mannix" fans will have to change their viewing habit in the fall. CBS is moving the can syndication rights, as of popular private eye series, next fall, to successful British starring Mike Connors, from half-hour comedy series, "Doc" Saturday to Wednesday night, in the House," starring Barry Evans.

'Doctor' Comedy

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Sing-a-longs may be goin' the way of the dinosaur, but celebrators at St. Peter's Couples' Club spring dance one recent Saturday were sure belting out ditties galore.

Folks came to gala from all over. (It was Howard Rust's Orchestra and dancers follow him like Pied Piper.) Not many singers were threats to Sinatra (oh, well, he's retired anyway); but from the sound of 'em, very few even sang-for-their-father. Listening for talent, one realized there's a definite difference between being "discovered" and being "found out!"

While Rust played two instruments and sang simultaneously, couples slid past painted white fences to dance floor where revolving mirrored ball on ceiling kept pace with Alley Cats and Twisters. On stage was replica of old wooden tree trunk from which hung flowered swing like the one Betty Grable used to see-saw over onlookers during old Rosie O'Grady flicks.

Paul Jones numbers gave gals excuse every four seconds for pursuin' a different guy—especially gents who thought whistle was way of wrigglin' away, fleein'-the-floor, and (in mod gab) doin' a quick split! Carl Esposito was offerin' suggestions to City Beat Columnist Hugh Reynolds (who smiled attentively), while Pete and Virginia Mancuso, celebratin' their 23rd anniversary, behaved as love 'n marriage should.

Living life to its fiscal full were Susie and John Pod, the Charlie VanEttens, Janice and Ken Pillsworth, the Joe Darwaks, Joe and Dot Mikesh (with handsome sons), Marguerite and Bucky Primo who looked like Mississippi gambler in black shirt, white cravat, checkered sport coat.

Trading quips were Al Jones, Tessie Mayone, Rita Senor (where you see one, you see the triumvirate). Understand Rita had a recent stroke of luck; she arrived at peak of storm at Camp-O-Rama in New Paltz (as guest of Camp Town Trotters) and walked off with free weekend at Massachusetts' Sturbridge Pinelake Camp. Also on tap were Bob Hayes, Town of Ulster Democratic chairman, Ed and Louise Norton, Flo and Ronnie O'Neil, Jim and Pat Gallagher, Club president Gerry Houghtaling, the Bob Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Keller Sr. who were observing 45th wedding anniversary.

Folks danced themselves into such a hunger mania that bread lines during depression (the big one) couldn't have been longer or busier.

Edgar Maurer garbed in red with Jules Albertini in green attire looked like traffic lights last week at Legion dinner honoring Joe Kelly, Mort Finch, George Heppner, Connie Heiselman, Clarence Hyde. Then Jim Gilpatrick walked in decked out in Kelly-green and the signal was "GO," all-the-way.... Man from Glad must've been pleased as punch one recent Sunday at stadium where Kingston Indians (practicing in rain from early a.m. to late p.m.) were linin' clothes with baggies to keep dry. If practice makes perfect, Sunday's Pow Wow Preview should be as timely as tomorrow's headlines.

Theatre Production Involves Music Man

A course in theatrical production, culminating in "The Music Man," will be offered at Columbia-Greene Community College this summer. An evening course, given on both a credit and non-credit basis, it's open to adults, college and high school students who have completed their junior year (with the approval of their principals). Tuition for those enrolling for credit in the three-semester-hour course will be $48 plus a $5 insurance fee. Those not enrolling for credit will be charged only the $5 fee.

The course will cover all aspects of theatrical production in addition to acting, singing and dancing. Students will be involved in set design and construction, lighting, costume design and execution, promotion and theater management.

Registration for all summer courses will be held at the college June 30 from 10 a.m. until 12 noon, and from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Interviews for those not enrolling for credit will be held July 1 and 2, at 7 p.m. for those interested in offstage activities, and at 8 p.m. for those interested in performing. Classes and rehearsals will begin July 6 and will meet Monday through Thursday evenings through Aug. 17. "The Music Man" will be presented Aug. 18, 19, 20, and 21.

For more information about the course in theatrical production or other summer courses, contact Frank J. Capozzi, Director of Admissions, Columbia-Greene Community College, 2 First Street, Athens, New York 12015, telephone (518) 945-1850.

Storm King Center Reopens

BEAUTIFULLY LANDSCAPED Storm King Art Center has opened its Special Exhibitions for the season. From now to Oct. 31, the Center will feature a loan of modern sculptures from New York City's Whitney Museum of American Art. Installed on the main floor of the new sculpture gallery are works by such noted artists as Louise Nevelson, Conrad Marca-Relli, David von Schlegell, David Packard, Barrie McDowell and Elbert Weinberg. In the other galleries, viewers will be treated to paintings, drawings and prints from the Center's permanent collection, including recent acquisitions. The Mountainville showplace also plans a retrospective exhibit of prints and drawings by Karl Schrag from June 19 to Aug. 22. "Modern Sculptors — Their Drawings and Prints," on loan from Brooklyn Museum and individual sculptors, will take over the Center from Aug. 28 to Oct. 31.

Story Theater to TV

NEW YORK (UPI)—Broadway's current "Story Theater," Paul Sill's unusual satiric interpretation of fairy tales and other public domain stories, will become a regular video series in Canada, with syndication of same to U.S. stations. The Canadian Television Network has contracted for 26 half-hour shows, to go on the air in the fall.

Morgan to Co-Star

Veteran character actor Harry Morgan, who has been prominent on the tube for years, will co-star with Robert Conrad in NBC's new fall half-hour series, "The D.A." The program is a production by Jack Web, with whom Morgan appeared for four years on "Dragnet."

ERNESTLY SPEAKING

stops sometime . . . so they tell me . . . and I know why; it runs out of steam! I dig that . . . because it's about what happened to me this past week. We've been so busy at Roberto's this May that I've come up to press time with an impatient linotyper breathing down my neck, with this "colyum" liable to be dressed completely in white space, unless I get some copy in real fast.

I think I'll defer the usual "Scene at Roberto's" roundup, which takes the most time (and careful proofreading) to do . . . except for a couple of items supposed to run the last issue, but didn't.

One would be the table headed by Frederick Coons, of Stony Brook, to celebrate the return from a Parisian trip of Mrs. Arthur Somers, of Rhinebeck. Among those pleasant were Trudy and Frederick Coons, and Donald Coons, of Stony Brook, and Mrs. Etta Cotter and Mrs. Irene Somers, of Rhinebeck. How could I have omitted a party that commented: "A little bit of the Continent in Port Ewen."  The other "missed" item that is a "must" was the 23rd Anniversary Dinner of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Sheeley, graced by 3 lively young couples: Glenn Sheely and Adrienne Wood; Dirk Sheeley and Jeanne Wells; and Leana Sheeley and Pat Gaffney. I'm glad they had a delightful time!

Next week I expect to get back into the groove and include all the patrons who are nice enough to fill in our "Tempo Colyum" sheet. You've all done so much to indicate to the folks around this area that Roberto's is the place to go for good food, in pleasant setting . . . with enjoyable music and casual entertainment on weekends. And that brings me to something I'd like to say about in general. I don't think I have to tell you that food prices have been leaping like a Mexican Jumping Bean that's been soaked in Mescal. A lot of restaurants have simply chalked up pretty hefty price increases across the board; some have tried to combine a half-way price hike with a half-way cut in quality. But it seems that nobody cares about the customers; what are they going to wind up with?

Here at Roberto's we've had our moments; I've got a partner who is probably the finest continental chef in the Hudson Valley, and he knows only one grade: "PRIME." At the same time, we have caused Roberto's to increase its business while restaurant volume in general has declined, simply by caring about the customer . . . by giving the best at the lowest price commensurate with impeccable quality. We got our patrons used to having that Cocktail or Highball before Dinner . . . at no extra charge; ditto the Shrimp Cocktail, Baked Clams, Roberto and other premium Appetizers. We have kept our starting Dinner Price at $5.50 for a long time, and we think we must keep it there. We can't raise prices much higher without hurting a lot of good customers; but there are some items that we just can't include in our Table d'Hote Dinner these days; so rather than make everybody pay for what just a few might want, we'll leave them off the menu altogether.

Most of you won't mind, I know; but it will enable Roberto's to point proudly at one fact nobody can deny: No other restaurant in our class, in the entire mid-Hudson Valley, matches what we give you, Course for Course and Dollar for Dollar. It boils down to this:

If you crave to Dine for less than $5.50, we're not in the running; likewise, if you want a meal for more than $9.00, we can't help you. But between those two Roberto's gives you the biggest selection, the best cuisine, the most lavish full course dinner you can get for your money. Oh, yes . . . about that $9.00 item: Actually, it's something new; in deference to consistent demand (and I mean that!) Roberto has added to the menu a big-league CHATEAUBRIAND which, as gourmets know, is just about tops in taste for those who appreciate the luxury of a Prime Double Filet Mignon, broiled on the traditional oaken plank, surrounded in the true Valois manner with Vegetables Bouquetiere and Potatoes Bordure. Actually, it's not $9.00 . . . it's $18.00 for two . . . because a Chateaubriand is made only for two or more diners.

Let me be frank: Roberto's cannot carry an unlimited stock of Double Filet Mignons, so if you really have your teeth set for this luscious steak, you might be wise to make your reservation in advance, and give in your order . . . to be sure.

MISH AND MASH

I'm not even going to take time to tell you that the "Saturday Night Soiree" was in great tempo, with Ed Shannon really great on those "oldies" that Mark Garrison and Tom Fitzgerald have been practicing with him; and Shirley did her usual stint at the Organ . . . as did Val Delavan, when she wasn't doing some fancy stepping with Ed. Don Carr did a terrific job on "Tiny Bubbles," and a lot of other regulars chimed in, as usual. But more of that some other time. I've got to sign off.

Ernie

P.S.: Good Luck, Lucy! And Speedy Recovery. We all miss you here at Roberto's. (At last count, Lucy had received three dozen pieces of Flowers and Fruit Baskets!)
